National Director

SECRET HEARING CALLED

Navy And Army Officials To Cite Necessity At Session
Set For Monday

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—Nationwide gasoline rationing will go into effect December 1, regardless of opposition, William M. Jeffers, national rubber director maintained
today.

The rubber czar said opposition gasoline rationing came from the most part from "well meaning civic agencies" in states where there is no gasoline shortage.

"They don't seem to realize that it's rubber we're trying to save," Jeffers said, "and whether the west likes it or not nationwide gas rationing is going into effect right on schedule on December 1."

Jeffers also spoke a few words to New Yorkers.
"How do you think our farmers feel," he said, "when they read that New York night clubs are doing their best business of all times, and that taxis are to be hired at every corner? We had better take care of the farmer even if there are less taxicabs in the big metropolitan centers. We can all win together or we can all lose together. Make no mistake about it we are short of rubber."

Hearing Set

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21—
Whether rebelling congressmen will be able to win postponement of nation-wide gasoline rationing beyond December 1, today appeared definitely to hinge on whether the war and navy departments can make a conclusive case that immediate rationing is a military necessity.

The congressmen will obtain the information through a secret hearing set for Monday by the house interstate commerce subcommittee on petroleum which has summoned high navy and army officials to get the inside picture.

Public Hearing

The secret session will be followed immediately by a public hearing at which representatives of the OPA, the office of defense transportation, and the office of the petroleum coordinator, together with spokesmen for the railroad, trucking and tire industries, will testify.

With rubber administrator Jeffers opposed to any further delays, it appeared that postponement cannot be won except by presidential intervention. In a New York speech, Jeffers charged that a strongly-financed western lobby is opposing nation-wide rationing but declared that despite its efforts, the program will begin December 1.

Butter Freeze Seen As First Step To Control Nation's Milk Supply

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 — WPB "freezing" of one half of the nation's cold storage butter today was believed to be the first step in a government program of complete control over milk production, processing and distribution.

The butter order was issued at the instance of the Food Requirements Committee which has been studying the control plan under which the following three steps were contemplated:

SPANISH PRINCE BOOSTS ALLIES

Pretender To Throne Urges Absolute Neutrality In World Conflict

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21—The American government today is in receipt of information that Crown Prince Don Juan, pretender to the Spanish throne, has issued an important statement in Geneva the effect of which is extremely favorable to the United Nations.

Don Juan, in his statement, has urged Spain to maintain "absolute neutrality" in the world conflict, and to remain on friendly terms with the "Americas."

The youthful pretender to the Spanish throne also said that Spain should, if necessary, resort to the use of armed force to defend its neutrality, and should insist on "respect" from the belligerent powers.

In view of the fact that the greatest threat to Spain's neutrality is considered to be from Germany, especially with Nazi troops now concentrated along the entire Franco-Spanish frontier, the crown prince's statement is regarded as distinctly favorable to the Allies.

Don Juan's statement also assured the Spanish people that he was "not entering into any conspiracy" to restore the monarchy to Spain. At the same time, however, he expressed confidence that the monarchy will eventually be restored.

Official circles in Washington consider the crown prince's statement of the utmost importance, not only because it is favorable to the United Nations but because of the influence Don Juan is believed to have on the Spanish people.

Marines On Islands Use Knives To Save On Rifle Ammunition

HONOLULU, Nov. 21 — "The worst is over on Guadalcanal. We can beat off anything they throw at us."

Lieut. Dewitt Peterkin, Jr., naval reserve officer of New York City, who fought through the last battle in the Solomons, made this confident prediction on arrival in Honolulu from the southwest Pacific.

He estimated that at least 10,000 Japanese troops had been slain on Guadalcanal and in attempted landings since August 7 when American Marines went ashore on the island.

Lieut. Peterkin, who used to work for the banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., is a member of the famous navy torpedo plane squadron VT-8, which lost all its planes and all personnel except Ensign Gay in the Midway battle.

The outfit has been reorganized and still carries on in the heroic tradition set at Midway.

Invaders Smashed
In the recent invasion attempt a few Japanese reinforcements may have gotten ashore from the four transports which were beached on Guadalcanal, Peterkin declared, but the number was not important. Navy planes smashed the ships before many of the troops or supplies could be landed, he said.

Some weeks ago, he recounted, Japanese transports carrying several thousand men to reinforce their Guadalcanal garrison were so heavily bombed that only 600 men were landed.

"The Marines were waiting for them," he continued. "The Japs were caught in a pocket. The Marines had decided to save ammunition so they slit the Japs' throats."

BRITISH SPIRIT DRAWS APPLAUSE FROM ELEANOR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who recently returned from her trip to London, today feels that the war will be shortened if America "makes the sacrifices the British are making."

Telling the nation about her trip, in a nation-wide broadcast, Mrs. Roosevelt said that "we are not rationed on anything as they are in Great Britain," and added: "We do not have the climate and discomforts they have. We may be uncomfortable when we have to travel, but we can travel without any major difficulties, and consideration is being given to the exceptional cases as each new need arises."

"No we are not yet, in less than a year of war, facing what the British have faced for over three years of war."

Telling of her visits to the hospitals in which some of the American flyers had been taken after having been injured, she continued:

"The cheerfulness is something which impresses you. There is going to be no whining by our boys, no matter what they have to face. I think they will tell you too, that there is very little grumbling among the British people about this or that little thing."

HERE'S JAP VERSION OF AMERICA'S FAMOUS JEEP

American soldiers fighting the Japs in New Guinea found this three-wheeled affair that was left behind as the enemy retreated. The vehicle apparently is intended to serve the same purpose as an American jeep since it can carry three or four men and probably is fairly maneuverable.

47 MEN LEAVE FOR INDUCTION

Second November Group In Columbus For Final Examination

Forty-seven men comprising the last Pickaway county draft contingent for November left Circleville Saturday to go before the Army medical team in Columbus. The men accepted out of this group will be added to the list of 45 accepted a week ago, these men now being on furlough, to comprise the county's quota for the month. Four colored men are scheduled for trips before the Army medical team later in the month.

The group which left Saturday was led by Harold (Andy) Marshall, Washington township, designated as temporary leader by the local board. One man, Willard Evans of Granville Route 1, failed to report. No reason was given the board for his failure to report.

Two others who failed to report last week because their notices were sent out Saturday with the group of 47. They were Emmanuel Johnson, Jackson Route 1, and William McKnight of Columbus, who had been in Arizona.

The board was advised Saturday that Phil E. Smith of Circleville, who was sent to Fort Thomas, Ky., for additional physical examination has been rejected. He went to Columbus last week for final physical, but was held over.

FARM LABORERS GUARANTEED BY CHIEF McNUTT

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 — Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the war manpower commission today promised that he would take any action necessary to guarantee sufficient farm labor to assure anticipated in 1943 production estimates.

Addressing the convention of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, Inc., McNutt said that, if necessary, "bankers, lawyers, businessmen and housewives" would be recruited as "crop commandos" to assist in harvesting and processing foods.

McNutt also declared that cities heavily engaged in war production could not expect any additional outside labor and that manpower shortages would have to be solved by redistribution of available workmen.

War production centers are already "bursting at the seams," McNutt declared.

DEADLINE FOR COFFEE SALES COMES TONIGHT

Saturday is the final day in which Circleville and Pickaway county housewives may buy coffee, if there is any available, for another week, since the freezing order becomes effective at the close of business today.

No coffee will be sold for a week to permit grocers to build up their stocks prior to the start of rationing. Coffee may be sold again beginning November 29. Ration books issued for sugar will be good for coffee, too, stamp No. 27 being the first one used. Each person who is over 15 years of age is entitled to one pound of coffee every five weeks.

Mr. McDowell said Saturday that reports from every part of the county indicated that the basic registration handled in the schools was highly successful, teachers and administrators doing a splendid job.

Supplemental registration will start at 1 p. m. Monday in Memorial Hall, continuing until 9 o'clock each day, except Thanksgiving, through November 30, Sunday, November 29, registration will be conducted from 2 to 6 p. m.

THOMA STATUS HIDDEN BEHIND FOG OF SECRECY

LONDON, Nov. 21 — Official silence was maintained today concerning Nazi Gen. Ritter Von Thoma, Afrika Korps commander captured in Egypt, but the military commentator of the Daily Mail declared that the high ranking German officer "has talked to us" and revealed a rift in the Nazi high command.

Gen. Von Thoma was brought secretly to England and immediately whisked away to an undisclosed destination. Official circles intimated that he would enjoy the same privacy that has enveloped Rudolf Hess and guarded him from public curiosity.

But the Daily Mail declared that Gen. Von Thoma had spoken freely of bitterness in high German military circles over the interference of civilian officials, including Herr Hitler, with the operations of the German general staff.

Gen. Von Thoma was said to have declared that the German army was built on loyalty to the German staff and its complete freedom from civilian interference. He was reported to have added that Hitler's assumption of the powers of supreme commander "has wrecked the Reichswehr."

HEAVY BOMBERS SPELLING DOOM FOR ITALIANS

Great Industrial Region Puts Up Only Feeble Show Of Resistance

BRITISH TAKE BENGHAZI

Red Army Clings Fast To Initiative—Yanks, Aussies Mopping Up Japs

By International News Service
The RAF campaign to knock Italy out of the war mounted to its highest pitch in an early morning raid today as the greatest force of bombers yet sent from England to Mussolini's domain pounded the battered city of Turin.

It was the second raid in three days on north Italy, and the fourth in the last week. Testimony of the devastation to the Italian industrial and shipping area was given by a Rome radio broadcast, a few hours before the latest raid, which warned gloomily that "Italy's hour has struck."

The great RAF force that struck again at Turin, site of the flat airplane works, included all of England's heaviest type bombers—Halifaxes, Wellingtons, Stirlings and Lancasters.

The feeble enemy defense was emphasized by the air ministry announcement that only three of the attacking planes failed to return to their bases.

Today's news from the fighting fronts made sorry reading for axis warlords who found themselves everywhere on the defensive before the upsurge of allied power.

Axis Cut Off
German-Italian forces in Tunisia were reported cut off and hemmed in on a narrow coastal strip between Bizerte and Tunis. The retreating axis army in Libya was believed to be so weakened by recent losses that it would not be able to make the expected stand at El Eghella.

British eighth army forces occupied the Libyan port of Benghazi, abandoned by the axis in the face of the victorious westward sweep of the allies, it was officially announced today.

"Benghazi was occupied by our forces yesterday morning," said a communique from headquarters of Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander, commander of British middle east forces.

Only Skirmishes
The swiftly advancing British made new contact with stragglers of German General Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating army in the vicinity of Jedabya, 80 miles from El Aghella to the west and about 100 miles south of Benghazi.

Bad flying weather again interfered with allied efforts to rake the withdrawing axis columns with gunfire but allied planes struck heavy blows against enemy airdromes on the Italian island of Sicily and against shipping off the Tunisian coast.

TRAINING HOP ENDS IN DEATH FOR SEVEN MEN

SIDNEY, O., Nov. 21—Seven Army fliers were burned to death when their plane crashed near Versailles, 20 miles West of Sidney, Army authorities revealed today.

The plane was on a routine training flight from Baer field near Fort Wayne, Ind., Army authorities said.

Six of the men have been identified tentatively by Maj. E. L. Olcott, Baer field public relations officer. They were:

First Lt. Homer B. Peck of Arvada, Colo., pilot; Second Lt. Marcus L. Dean of Wichita Falls, Tex., co-pilot; Staff Sgts. Leo W. Barnes of Helena, Mont., radio operator; Rufus M. Roseberry of Van Nuys, Calif., engineer; Elbert C. Armstrong of Dolores, Colo., gunner and Le Roy Confee of Bellefonte, Pa., crew chief.

Major Olcott said the cause of the crash was unknown.

Butter Freeze Seen As First Step To Control Nation's Milk Supply

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 — WPE "freezing" of one half of the nation's cold storage butter today was believed to be the first step in a government program of complete control over milk production, processing and distribution.

The butter order was issued at the instance of the Food Requirements Committee which has been studying the control plan under which the following three steps were contemplated:

1. Rationing of fluid milk consumption in a number of war centers, such as Washington, St. Louis, Portland, Ore., New Orleans, and particularly congested areas in the south.
2. Curtailment of civilian supply of milk products such as ice cream, cheese and butter, and,
3. Measures designed to keep milk production up to the 1942 all-time high of 120,000,000,000 pounds.

From 30,000,000 to 35,000,000 pounds of cold storage butter in the 35 principal markets of the country were temporarily "frozen" to assure adequate supplies for America's fighting forces and those of the United Nations.

Cut For Civilians

The action will result in about a 10 percent cut in the normal butter supply for civilians. The order, which estimated that on November 1 consumer stocks of creamery butter totaled 83,000,000 pounds, provides that the "frozen" stocks must be held until delivered to the government, or until March 6 when the order becomes inoperative.

Individual concerns must set aside butter amounting to one half of what they had on hand November 6 or November 20, whichever is higher. They are prohibited from filling contracts previously made if they have to use any of the government stocks to do so.

A WPE spokesman said that the increased demands for the armed forces and lend-lease along with the smallest production levels in butter since 1932, caused such a serious situation that ships having available space for butter were leaving with other cargo, because the government could not purchase butter supplies.

Butter Available

He said that for the next several weeks and possibly until January, consumers will be able to purchase the same amount of butter as at present. While he said that this did not indicate that a rationing program was under consideration for the immediate future, he admitted that such a step might be necessary sometime next year.

The spokesman also advised consumers to switch over to substitute fats and oils whenever possible, particularly for cooking purposes.

So far as is known the butter freezing order will have no effect of any consequence on the dairy industry in Pickaway county. Russell Palm, manager of the Pickaway Dairy Cooperative association, said Saturday that the government is buying much skim milk and is expected momentarily to increase its demand for butter and other dairy products.

Telling the nation about her trip, in a nation-wide broadcast, Mrs. Roosevelt said that "we are not rationed on anything as they are in Great Britain," and added: "We do not have the climate and discomforts they have. We may be uncomfortable when we have to travel, but we can travel without any major difficulties, and consideration is being given to the exceptional cases as each new need arises."

MIND READER ENLISTED FOR ACTIVE SERVICE

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—"Myokineti Psychodiagnosis" or M. P. D. for short was entered today as the latest weapon of war.

Dr. Emilio Mira, formerly chief psychiatrist of the loyalists in the Spanish Civil War described M. P. D. at the New York Academy of Medicine as a new technique to detect the "fighting power" in the individual and the group at any given time.

Dr. Mira said it was possible by means of M. P. D. to determine in a few minutes the mental and psychological state of a commanding general, thus preventing errors and accidents due to fatigue and overexertion.

"Military men are too proud of their duties to reveal that they are feeling overworked or exhausted," Dr. Mira said in explaining the necessity for objective tests to determine the mental fitness of commanding officers.

LONDON, Nov. 21 — Official silence was maintained today concerning Nazi Gen. Ritter Von Thoma, Afrika Korps commander captured in Egypt, but the military commentator of the Daily Mail declared that the high ranking German officer "has talked to us" and revealed a rift in the Nazi high command.

Gen. Von Thoma was brought secretly to England and immediately whisked away to an undisclosed destination. Official circles intimated that he would enjoy the same privacy that has enveloped Rudolf Hess and guarded him from public curiosity.

But the Daily Mail declared that Gen. Von Thoma had spoken freely of bitterness in high German military circles over the interference of civilian officials, including Herr Hitler, with the operations of the German general staff.

Gen. Von Thoma was said to have declared that the German army was built on loyalty to the German staff and its complete freedom from civilian interference. He was reported to have added that Hitler's assumption of the powers of supreme commander "has wrecked the Reichswehr."

BRITISH TAKE BENGHAZI

Red Army Clings Fast To Initiative—Yanks, Aussies Mopping Up Japs

By International News Service
The RAF campaign to knock Italy out of the war mounted to its highest pitch in an early morning raid today as the greatest force of bombers yet sent from England to Mussolini's domain pounded the battered city of Turin.

It was the second raid in three days on north Italy, and the fourth in the last week. Testimony of the devastation to the Italian industrial and shipping area was given by a Rome radio broadcast, a few hours before the latest raid, which warned gloomily that "Italy's hour has struck."

The great RAF force that struck again at Turin, site of the flat airplane works, included all of England's heaviest type bombers—Halifaxes, Wellingtons, Stirlings and Lancasters.

The feeble enemy defense was emphasized by the air ministry announcement that only three of the attacking planes failed to return to their bases.

Today's news from the fighting fronts made sorry reading for axis warlords who found themselves everywhere on the defensive before the upsurge of allied power.

Axis Out Off

German-Italian forces in Tunisia were reported cut off and hemmed in on a narrow coastal strip between Bizerte and Tunis. The retreating axis army in Libya was believed to be so weakened by recent losses that it would not be able to make the expected stand at El Agheila.

British eighth army forces occupied the Libyan port of Benghazi, abandoned by the axis in the face of the victorious westward sweep of the allies, it was officially announced today.

"Benghazi was occupied by our forces yesterday morning," said a communique from headquarters of Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander, commander of British middle east forces.

Only Skirmishes

The swiftly advancing British made new contact with stragglers of German General Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating army in the vicinity of Jedabya, 80 miles from El Agheila to the west and about 100 miles south of Benghazi.

Bad flying weather again interfered with allied efforts to rake the withdrawing axis columns with gunfire but allied planes struck heavy blows against enemy airdromes on the Italian island of Sicily and against shipping off the Tunisian coast.

TRAINING HOP ENDS IN DEATH FOR SEVEN MEN

SIDNEY, O., Nov. 21—Seven Army fliers were burned to death when their plane crashed near Versailles, 20 miles West of Sidney. Army authorities revealed today.

The plane was on a routine training flight from Baer field near Fort Wayne, Ind., Army authorities said.

Six of the men have been identified tentatively by Maj. E. L. Olcott, Baer field public relations officer. They were:

First Lt. Homer B. Peck of Arvada, Colo., pilot; Second Lt. Marcus L. Dean of Wichita Falls, Tex., co-pilot; Staff Sgts. Leo W. Barnes of Helena, Mont., radio operator; Rufus M. Roseberry of Van Nuys, Calif., engineer; Elbert C. Armstrong of Dolores, Colo., gunner and Roy Confort of Bellefonte, Pa., crew chief.

Major Olcott said the cause of the crash was unknown.

The Germans in the mid-Caucasus, smashed steadily forward against the Nazis today in Bothmm in the Nalchik and Mozdok areas.

Russians Attack

The noon communique issued by Soviet high command said that Russian troops had launched an assault in the Mozdok area and attacked a stubbornly defended height in continued fighting south-east of Nalchik.

The Russians forged ahead as Soviet newspapers predicted that a Winter offensive soon would be launched to drive the Germans back along the entire front.

(The exchange telegraph company reported from Moscow that some German units, after recovering from the severe blow struck against them at the approaches to Ordzhonikidze, made desperate efforts to recapture some lost positions but were again repelled by the Russians.)

Small units of Germans launched attacks in the Stalingrad area during the night but the assaults were readily repulsed by the Soviet defenders, the communique said.

Yanks Busy

Yanks and Aussie forces today were mopping up Japanese outposts in the Buna-Gona area of the New Guinea coast preparatory to an all-out assault to drive the enemy forces into the sea.

One American column, which pushed to within 500 yards of the fringes of Buna, met heavy resistance from Japanese machine gun nests. Another American unit which fought its way into nearby Wairopi killed 24 Japanese who tried to escape from the village.

A third American outfit advancing on Buna met heavy enemy fire on the edges of the coastal town.

Fighting was reported still raging around Buna as the allied forces closed in on the invaders who landed at the Papuan port last July.

Australian columns, driving from the west, were reported at Soputa, only a few miles from Buna.

The whole Japanese invasion force, which advanced to within 34 miles of Port Moresby on the opposite side of the island, has been driven back to the narrow coastal strip between Buna and Gona.

Furthermore, it appears that Franco's decree early this week ordering partial mobilization in Spain was issued shortly after the crown prince made known his views in Geneva, which would indicate that Franco was virtually carrying out Don Juan's orders to prepare to resist by force any breach of Spain's neutrality.

LAVAL SEEKS TO STIR FRENCH AGAINST ALLIES

LONDON, Nov. 21—Pierre Laval, Nazi puppet, today was irrevocably committed to an axis victory in the world war which he called "the only hope for peace in Europe."

In the first radio broadcast he has made since Chief of State Marshal Philippe Petain clothed him with virtually dictatorial powers, Laval bitterly attacked President Roosevelt and scored the allied occupation of North Africa as another move to "tear away the French empire piece by piece."

"Without the empire France cannot live," Laval declared.

Laval called French leaders who had declared war on Germany in 1939 "madmen" and said the war was "useless because it was lost in advance."

Cynically admitting his two-faced political policy, Laval declared: "I was always certain that Germany would be the victor, but I was always ready to remain on good terms with America. I have always wanted peace. I have wanted it with America."

An allied victory in the war, Laval added, will mean domination of the world "by Jews and Communists."

Greatest Holiday Traffic Of All Time Expected Next Month

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21—ODT officials today forecast the greatest Christmas holiday traffic in the nation's history next month, despite an urgent appeal to the American public to stay at home.

Upwards of 50,000,000 passengers are expected to jam the country's overcrowded railroads and buses during December.

Officials explained that it will be impossible to avert the all-time record peak because of the tremendous volume of war-connected travel that will be done, including troop movements and holiday furloughs of members of the armed forces.

ODT spokesmen indicated that traffic on the railroads alone will surpass the previous 1942 peak of 31,000,000 passengers, reached in June, while intercity buses are expected to carry an even greater load, although for shorter distances.

In view of the forthcoming jam, ODT representatives appealed to the general public to stay at home unless there is a real need to travel; to forego the traditional family reunions on Thanksgiving and Christmas this year.

A nation-wide "don't travel" campaign will be pressed by the ODT, in cooperation with the association of American railroads and the national association of motor bus operators, through posters, newspaper advertising and other media.

Although passenger train schedules have been "frozen," chartered cars banned and bus operations placed on a war-time footing, railroad passenger traffic increased 68 per cent in the first eight months of this year, while bus travel went up 66 per cent.

PROCESSION OF AUTOS PASS ON WAY TO GAME

Interest in the Ohio State-Michigan football game, scheduled at 2:30 this afternoon, was proved anew as early as Friday afternoon when automobiles bearing Kentucky and West Virginia license tags started to move through Circleville heading toward Columbus by Saturday morning this stream became a steady one.

This game is the first this season which has attracted such an influx of visitors from south of the river. In years gone by these two states have always sent large delegations of fans Columbus-ward.

Sports fans here say that West Virginia interest was developed some years ago when Hoge and Noel Workman were performing for Ohio. They were from the hill country.

Japanese and American fleets, a flotilla of eight enemy transports was sighted heading for Guadalcanal. Navy torpedo bombers went out to intercept them, and caught them about 90 miles out, said Peterkin.

The Navy squadron blasted the transports so hard that the few ships that were not sunk were forced to turn back.

All forces on Guadalcanal — Marines, Army and Navy — are cooperating effectively and splendidly, Peterkin declared. He had specially high praise for Army air force men who have joined the Naval and Marine pilots on Henderson field.

While things are pretty grim in the Solomons, it has not suppressed horseplay typical of young American troops.

"When the first Army reinforcements arrived," he said, "they came well stocked with supplies. They unloaded these carefully on the beach while Marines sauntered up to watch and advise."

"The Army men were warned to duck for cover when an air raid alarm sounded the approach of Japanese bombers."

Motives That Strengthen Family Life

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

BY NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Nov. 22 is Exodus 2:1-4; 20-12; Joshua 24:14, 15; Proverbs 31:10-31; Luke 2:41-51; Ephesians 5:22-33; 6:1-4; Colossians 3:18-21, the Golden Text being 1 Cor. 13:8. "Love never faileth.")

YEARS AFTER the death of Joseph, the Hebrew people had become slaves to the Egyptians and were very cruelly treated by them. Indeed, so terrible was their treatment that the ruling Pharaoh commanded the people of Israel to cast every son born to them into the river. Only the girl babies were to be spared.

At this time a man of the house of Levi married a daughter of the same tribe and they had an infant son. The mother saw that the baby was a lovely child and determined that he should not be destroyed, so when he was three months old and she could no longer conceal him in the home, she made "an ark of bulrushes, and daubed it with slime and pitch, and put the child therein; and she laid it in the flags by the river's brink. And his sister stood afar off, to wit what would be done to him."

The mother had faith that God would not let her little son die, but would preserve him, and this sister, Miriam, was to be near at hand to see what would happen to him. You know the story of the princess coming to bathe in the river and taking the baby home with her, later adopting him as her son. She called him Moses and he grew up to lead his people out of their bondage in Egypt.

Honour Thy Parents

Next we have the sixth commandment, which also bears upon our lesson on family life, "Honour thy father and thy mother: that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee." There are people in the world who do not heed this command. Sometimes, sad to say, it is at least partly the parents' fault that this is so, but in a good home, with children properly loved and reared, the father and mother are honored and tenderly cared for as long as they live.

Joshua, you remember, was Moses' brother, and after his death Joshua led the people into the promised land. Near the end of his life he talked to them, telling them that they must make a choice of the god they would worship. They might worship heaven gods, but he reminded them of all the Lord had done for them, and said that he and his household would worship the One True God.

In the last chapter of Proverbs we are given a beautiful picture of the perfect wife and mother, and while it is too long to quote here, it should be read for its beauty and truth.

The "virtuous woman" is one whom her husband can trust, for she will do him good all her days. She is industrious, she manages her household splendidly, providing warm clothes so that the family does not fear the cold of winter. She rises early to give them food; she is even a good business woman, buying land, planting it, besides making "fine linen" and selling it. Her husband prospers because of her.

Gives to the Needy

She has a tender heart and gives to the poor and needy. "She openeth her mouth with wisdom; and in her tongue is the law of kindness."

No wonder her "children rise up and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her."

"Favour is deceitful, and beauty is vain, but a woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised." There is a reference to Christ's childhood when he went to Jerusalem with His parents, and stayed in the temple until they found Him. As we have had this story twice recently, we will not dwell upon it only to say that Jesus was an obedient child, and His home was undoubtedly a happy one.

In St. Paul's letter to the Ephesians he states his idea of the ideal family. The father and husband is the head of the house, he states, the wife submitting herself to him. Husbands, he admonishes, "love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church and gave Himself for it."

This is the ideal family, then; the father heading it, loving and cherishing its members; the mother being diligent in all her household duties, helping the husband to be successful, loving her children and caring for them and all who live in the household; and the children growing up obedient to the parents, loving and honoring them. In such a home the father would not "provoke his children to anger, lest they be discouraged." As Paul says, and the children would grow up to indeed honor their father and mother, for love like this never faileth.

The virtuous woman "riseth while it is yet night, and giveth meat to her household, and a portion to her maidens."

The virtuous woman layeth her hands to the spindle, and her hands hold the distaff. Her family is "clothed in scarlet."

"She stretcheth out her hand to the poor; yea, she reacheth forth her hands to the needy," says the Proverb.

Thanksgiving Thought

By Rev. G. L. Troutman

The following Thanksgiving sentiment was expressed Saturday by the Rev. G. L. Troutman of Trinity Lutheran church as the thought for his Thanksgiving service next Wednesday night:

"Blessed be the Lord God of America, who daily loadeth us with benefits too numerous for us to mention. The soul of the Christian breaks forth in joy, praising God for all His benefits when he observes the goodness of God toward us as a people and as a nation. The harvest fields have been prolific this year, beyond many other years which we have had. For this let's thank God through this service.

"Although our nation is at war and our sons have gone forth to protect this country, some of them with their lives, yet our beloved country has not been invaded.

"For this Trinity Lutheran invites you to join her in thanking God.

"There has been no hindrance to the preaching of the Gospel among us. There is still religious freedom. For this let's thank and praise God."

ASHVILLE

Our Fred Curry, who for quite awhile had charge of a force of workers excavating for the Lockbourne air base drainage system, was operated for hernia at Grant hospital the fore part of the week. "Getting along fine" is the word from there yesterday evening. Following the completion of the nearby work at the air base, he was employed at Marion for some weeks. The family residing at Marion for the duration of operations there, has returned to their home here near the Norfolk and Western depot.

The soldier, photo display window at Toole's Electric shop on Long street, gets in a few new pictures near every day. The latest one received is that of Ray Kraft, a splendid likeness. He will be off for war duty within the next few days with others whose names are not available at present. Pictures in uniform are preferred.

No rural mail delivery out from the local postoffice on Thanksgiving day, so Postmaster Smith told us. And in many of the homes a fine turkey will be served at the noon meal on this named day. The only grower of turkeys in this community in any considerable number, is Miss Dorothy Osterle who has had on full feed since September one, 190 choice birds, she told us yesterday. Raised about the same number a year ago and two years since, the flock numbered 400. And if and when you read this turkey item and conclude to have one of these for that turkey dinner now being planned, consider yourself out of luck, for this named flock is all sold to the wholesale market, a part to a county seat dealer and the others to Columbus. The loss of birds from the poultry stage on through the season, did not amount to more than a dozen, she told us.

A recent visitor at the home of Elmer Malone and family on East Main street, was J. C. Mercer of Portsmouth, a retired Norfolk and Western railroad conductor. Rev. Albert Schiff, brother of local Doctor Schiff, is an army chaplain and will be going over seas in the near future. Lloyd Kittle was here yesterday from the township looking the town over for a dwelling location but with no such thing anywhere to be found. This "gas rationing deal" has caused no small amount of "stir up" in real ownership of autos, but even at this, things are moving smoothly with enough force of teacher helpers to grind all applicants through in short order at the school distributing point. The number of rationing books issued Thursday evening was 154. Wednesday, first evening, 172.

The several out in search of game afield yesterday from local territory whom we contacted yesterday evening, gave good reports, none returning empty handed. Game plentiful, they told us.

Motives That Strengthen Family Life

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

BY NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Nov. 22 is Exodus 21:1-4; 20:12; Joshua 24:14, 15; Proverbs 31:10-31; Luke 2:41-51; Ephesians 5:22-33; 6:1-4; Colossians 3:18-21, the Golden Text being I Cor. 13:8, "Love never faileth.")

YEARS AFTER the death of Joseph, the Hebrew people had become slaves to the Egyptians and were very cruelly treated by them. Indeed, so terrible was their treatment that the ruling Pharaoh commanded the people of Israel to cast every son born to them into the river. Only the girl babies were to be spared.

At this time a man of the house of Levi married a daughter of the same tribe and they had an infant son. The mother saw that the baby was a lovely child and determined that he should not be destroyed, so when he was three months old and she could no longer conceal him in the home, she made "an ark of bulrushes, and daubed it with slime and pitch, and put the child therein; and she laid it in the flags by the river's brink. "And his sister stood afar off, to wit what would be done to him."

The mother had faith that God would not let her little son die, but would preserve him, and this sister, Miriam, was to be near at hand to see what would happen to him. You know the story of the princess coming to bathe in the river and taking the baby home with her, later adopting him as her son. She called him Moses and he grew up to lead his people out of their bondage in Egypt.

Honour Thy Parents

Next we have the sixth commandment, which also bears upon our lesson on family life, "Honour thy father and thy mother: that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee." There are people in the world who do not heed this command. Sometimes, sad to say, it is at least partly the parents' fault that this is so, but in a good home, with children properly loved and reared, the father and mother are honored and tenderly cared for as long as they live.

The soldier, photo display window at Toole's Electric shop on Long street, gets in a few new pictures nearly every day. The latest one received is that of Ray Kraft, a splendid likeness. He will be off for war duty within the next few days with others whose names are not available at present. Pictures in uniform are preferred.

No rural mail delivery out from the local postoffice on Thanksgiving day, so Postmaster Smith told us. And in many of the homes a fine turkey will be served at the noon meal on this named day. The only grower of turkeys in this community in any considerable number, is Miss Dorothy Osterle who has had on full feed since September one, 150 choice birds, she told us yesterday. Raised about the same number a year ago and two years since, the flock numbered 400. And if and when you read this turkey item and conclude to have one of these for that turkey dinner now being planned, consider yourself out of luck, for this named flock is all sold to the wholesale market, a part to a county seat dealer and the others to Columbus. The loss of birds from the poul stage on through the season, did not amount to more than a dozen, she told us.

A recent visitor at the home of Elmer Malone and family on East Main street, was J. C. Mercer of Portsmouth, a retired Norfolk & Western railroad conductor. . . . Rev. Albert Schiff, brother of local Doctor Schiff, is an army chaplain and will be going over seas in the near future. . . . Lloyd Kittle was here yesterday from the township looking the town over for a dwelling location but with no such thing anywhere to be found. . . . This "gas rationing deal" has caused no small amount of "stir up" in real ownership of autos, but even at this, things are moving smoothly with enough force of teacher helpers to grind all applicants through in short order at the school distributing point. The number of rationing books issued Thursday evening was 184. Wednesday, first evening, 172.

The several out in search of game afield yesterday from local territory whom we contacted yesterday evening, gave good reports, none returning empty handed. Game plentiful, they told us.

DARLAN'S USEFULNESS

THE President's frank statement about the status of Admiral Darlan relieved the public mind, in this country and among our allies, about the status of that clever Frenchman. Darlan has been one of the "men of Vichy" and there seems to be no convincing evidence that his principles have changed. He is naturally under suspicion among men of proved loyalty in France, Britain and America, and will remain so.

But even a man of Darlan's type, from whatever motive, may serve a useful purpose temporarily. If he is really helping the American forces to solve the practical problems of control in North Africa, as he seems to be, and if the American military leaders in that area are on their guard and have made no rash commitments, there is probably no harm in using him. It may also be good for his soul, and for the souls of such other dubious French leaders as may be associated with him in his present activity, to share in such a job of international order and decency.

But General Eisenhower and his associates will need to keep their eye-teeth sharpened. The ways of political adventurers on the Continent are beyond the imagining of most of us simple-minded Americans.

PENSIONS PLUS

THE state of Idaho has a new and definite plan to take care of its old people. It will provide artificial limbs and teeth, eyeglasses and a pension of $40 a month, with $8 worth of medical care a month for every citizen aged 65 or over, and $100 for burial costs. The pension act for these purposes has been approved by popular vote.

Many citizens, however, seem to be getting worried about it. The head of a Taxpayers' League figures that these generous provisions will cost property owners $13 per $1,000 of valuation, or else a 5 per cent sales tax. But the friends of the pension act simply reply, "What of it?"

"Social gains," as they are coming to be called, are taking many forms nowadays. Some are wise and some are not. The old and the helpless must be cared for. But the typical American spirit is still that of Robert Burns, who wanted to "gather gear" by all honorable ways—

"Not for to hide it in a hedge,
Not for a train attendant,
But for the glorious privilege

WASHINGTON — Democracy's propagandists are urging the United Nations' leaders to broadcast a definite and detailed statement of the sort of world they intend to create, beginning directly after the Axis' 100 per cent extinction.

It's been explained in general terms, to be sure, by spokesmen like President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, but the critics' judgment is that the Axis' victims would like to be assured, not only that their various countries will be politically free in a broad sense, but that a certain amount of kindly care will be taken of 'em during the period of their recovery, and thereafter, economically, on into indefinite futurity.

Uncle Sam and John Bull are pointed to as the chaps from whom the pledge is especially needed.

It isn't represented that it would put added pep into Russian and Chinese war efforts, because they're believed to be doing their maximum already. Still, they'd appreciate it. As for the over-run little realms, already in guerrilla action or simmering for it, it would be calculated to solidify and stir 'em up to go anti-Axis to the limit. It

STIMSON'S PHONE CALL

WASHINGTON—An hour or two before Wendell Willkie was scheduled to deliver his speech before the New York Herald Tribune forum proclaiming that a "war without a purpose is a war without victory," he turned off the telephone and lay down for a catnap. His radio broadcast was to be at 10:30 p. m.

At 9:45 p. m. he got up and turned the phone on again. Immediately it rang and the operator said, "This is the White House calling." She had been trying to get him for some time.

Secretary of War Stimson then came on the phone. Willkie and Stimson have known each other in New York Republican politics and known each other well. Mr. Stimson, however, was stiff and formal. He said:

"This is the Secretary of War speaking. I understand you are going to make an address tonight. It is my duty to tell you that if you make that address you will seriously interfere with the operation of the armed forces of the United States in North Africa, and endanger the lives of thousands of American soldiers."

"Have you read the speech?" asked Willkie.

"No," replied Stimson, "but I have had it called to my attention."

Willkie then read him the paragraph of his speech which referred to North Africa and criticized Admiral Darlan, as follows: "Shall we in America be quiet, for instance, when our leaders, after promising freedom to the French people, put into control over them the very man who has helped to enslave them? Shall we be quiet when we see our Government's long appeasement of Vichy find its logical conclusion in our collaboration with Darlan, Hitler's tool? Such collaboration outrages the spirit of free people everywhere, whatever military expediency dictated it. We hope that the occasion for such expediency will shortly pass."

Stimson then read Willkie part of a telegram sent to the War Department regarding the military situation in North Africa, and reiterated his insistence that delivery of the above portion of his speech would "do a grave injustice to our country."

THE REVAMPED RELEASE

Under the circumstances, Willkie bowed to the Secretary of War, went immediately to the Herald Tribune forum, called in the press, and revamped the releases which had been given out some hours earlier to all newspapers. There he found that the United States Government had taken the very unusual step of instructing the newspapers to hold up his speech.

Later Willkie also learned that cabling his speech abroad had also been delayed. The delay of an hour and a half was due to cutting from the speech the paragraph that Willkie had eliminated at Stimson's request.

At four o'clock the next afternoon, Willkie was dumbfounded to read that the President of the United States himself had released a statement in which he said that the "temporary expediency" with Admiral Darlan was "justified solely by the stress

A lot of us regard the Japs as the most uncivilized of the entire Axis lineup.

I don't.

I've lived in Nippon and have friends there, as in Germany.

But you have to distinguish between those Jap lads and their war lords.

On earth there's no similar comparison.

I'm acquainted with Jap newspapermen who are as civilized as I am. They're not in the least like the Chinese. A Chinese military commander is like one of our own A Jap commander is one of the Mikado's pre-historic "samurai." The Mikado himself can't boss 'em.

Net Conclusion

The net conclusion is that:

1. Normal democratic nationalities have got to be assembled as fast as possible.

2. Certain freak or accidental nationalities must be scooped in and guaranteed as to their respective futures.

3. The prospectively-lucked nationalities must be assured that civilization won't be too confounded mean with 'em.

4. And the Japs will have to be exterminated.

Gosh! I regret this latter. Yet they're the birds who don't figure as any exception. Individually they'll be spared, but nationally? That's different!

What'll we have?

Europe-America? Asia-Africa? Everywhere-else?

Why Heart Tests Must Be Rigid for Soldiers

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE SOLDIER requires a stout heart in more ways than one. Any extra work or strain must eventually be borne by the heart. Even the slightest defect will enlarge as the excitable individual. The latter's heart may go to pieces in battle and the former is really fit only for limited kinds of duties.

A dislocation of the apex beat of the heart, an abnormal pulse either in rate or regularity, a throbbing of the vessels of the neck, prominent eyeballs, all indicate an unstable nervous system and require a further careful examination. Of course, heart murmurs or persistent high blood pressure are causes for flat rejection.

Soldier's Heart

A form of heart abnormality which seems to have a purely nervous basis is closely associated with army life. It was called "soldier's heart" by the Philadelphia physician, Dr. Costa, in our Civil War, and it bobbed up again in World War I, and we called it effort syndrome. The principle symptom was an extremely rapid pulse—so rapid that it prevented the subject from doing any strenuous duty. As soon as he is released from the army the heart returns to normal. It occurs in unstable, nervous, high-strung persons and the examiner should be able to spot it and save the army the trouble of taking care of them when they bog down. They are liabilities, not assets, to the army and navy.

Exercise tests are used to attempt to measure the selectee's powers of endurance, but they are not regarded as very satisfactory.

It is the Rainy Lake Pigeon river watershed, with some 10,000,000 acres. The area is nonagricultural and virtually uninhabited. CHAPTER FORTY-FOUR

BRUCE STARED at the three in the lighted doorway with dumb bewilderment. "What do you mean? Isn't Mary here?"

Fran gave an hysterical laugh and turned back toward the living room, Burke following. Burke argued, "Now, look, Fran, she said she might be late."

"Not this late," Fran was tuning the police calls higher.

Bruce shut the door and strode after them. "But where is she?" he demanded angrily.

Burke said distantly, "We have no idea."

"We thought she was with you—until we found out you were at Ciro's," Ken laughed out bitterly.

Bruce retorted, "I wasn't at Ciro's tonight!"

"Oh, you weren't?" Ken sneered. His freckles stood out belligerently in the white, strained misery of his face.

Bruce stared at the three in blank, mounting confusion. "Say—what's this all about?"

It was Fran who answered him, watching him closely as she spoke. "I was tuning in a police call. We were worried about Mary—but not too worried, because we thought she'd met you and had forgotten the time. And then I happened to get Ciro's broadcast. The orchestra leader was just announcing your arrival—you and Toinette. He said you'd have to hurry if you got that last dance."

Bruce brushed it off with a snort of disgust. "He must be going blind, or else it's a gag. But what about Mary?"

"She called about 11," Fran went on with effort, "and told me she might be a little late. She usually gets home by 12. We waited till one. We were impatient. You see, she knew we were planning to start for Yuma tonight to get married. She was going along. We finally called Ken. He told us to call the police. He came right over. He said he was afraid he knew why she was detained." Fran's nerveless hand fluttered toward an open newspaper. Bruce saw his picture with Toinette.

"My God!" he muttered. A cold dread went over him. "And it's a fake story?"

Ken sneered. "You've had a lot of frame-ups tonight."

Fran ignored the interruption and went racing on with her story. "And then some man called. Said he was from Nordex—we'd called there first. Said he thought he knew where Mary was, but that he expected her to be home before this. And we were to call him the minute she came in. He asked a lot of would hearten the Fighting French also, and probably decide a lot of doubtful Frenchmen, meaning most of the rest of 'em. Furthermore, it would be liable to detach Italy from the Axis group, from which, at present, the average Italian would be glad to have his kingdom disconnected itself. It would put a finish, of course, to the small bit of pro-Axis sentiment in Spain.

It's even suggested that, in Germany itself, it might make a slight impression; there are said to be a handful of old-time true liberals still lingering there. The Fatherland had 'em once, and surely they're entitled to recognition if there are any survivors. Occasionally one of 'em manifests himself, too, by escaping, as a genuine, unmistakable refugee, and coming here with his anti-Hitler holier-than-thou, invariably.

The fact is that anti-Naziism apparently has its democratic military as well as its political value in the very territories where it's most emphatically dominant.

It keeps Hitleristic troops at home, doing police duty, and the more they're detached the better, democratically.

Well, the Axis consists of Hitlerites, Mussolini-ites, a small minority of Falangists in Spain and the germ of its philosophy in Argentina and Chile, maybe—though that's questionable—Eliminate those bunches and it simmers down to Germany. Japan doesn't classify.

Under the circumstances, Willkie bowed to the Secretary of War, went immediately to the Herald Tribune forum, called in the press, and revamped the releases which had been given out some hours earlier to all newspapers. There he found that the United States Government had taken the very unusual step of instructing the newspapers to hold up his speech.

Later Willkie also learned that cabling his speech abroad had also been delayed. The delay of an hour and a half was due to cutting from the speech the paragraph that Willkie had eliminated at Stimson's request.

At four o'clock the next afternoon, Willkie was dumbfounded to read that the President of the United States himself had released a statement in which he said that the "temporary expediency" with Admiral Darlan was "justified solely by the stress

Why Heart Tests Must Be Rigid for Soldiers

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE SOLDIER requires a stout heart in more ways than one. Any extra work or strain must eventually be borne by the heart. Even the slightest defect will enlarge under the pressure of the marches, drills, exercises and stints of all kinds demanded by training and these will be greatly augmented in combat.

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

My mail is full of complaints from draftees and applicants who have been turned down by the Army or Navy examining boards on account of their hearts. They say they have been doing full hard work for many years and have no symptoms of fatigue or symptoms referable to the heart.

This, of course, is undoubtedly true. One of the prime and well-known features of many forms of heart trouble is that they are silent. The subject may go years without knowing there is anything the matter with his heart. Then, only on a life insurance examination is found a slight murmur. And life insurance companies recognize that these are of little danger, because they accept many of them although on an increased premium basis. The defect may not cause any discomfort until the subject enters the age of arterial change—50 or 60.

But the conditions of civil life which render the heart subject safe for an insurance company to accept are far different from the army. The army examinations are intended to prevent as many persons as possible from losing days from duty, and any potential source of disability is cause for rejection.

In the examination as conducted by most boards, a history of past illnesses is first taken. The examiner learns a lot from this—the stoic is as equally suspected as the excitable individual. The latter's heart may go to pieces in battle and the former is really fit only for limited kinds of duties.

A dislocation of the apex beat of the heart, an abnormal pulse either in rate or regularity, a throbbing of the vessels of the neck, prominent eyeballs, all indicate an unstable nervous system and require a further careful examination. Of course, heart murmurs or persistent high blood pressure are causes for flat rejection.

Soldier's Heart
A form of heart abnormality which seems to have a purely nervous basis is closely associated with army life. It was called "soldier's heart" by the Philadelphia physician, Dr. Costa, in our own Civil War, and it bobbed up again in World War I, and we called it shell shock. The principle symptom was an extremely rapid pulse—so rapid that it prevented the subject from doing any strenuous duty. As soon as he is released from the army the heart returns to normal. It occurs in unstable, nervous, high-strung persons and the examiner should be able to spot it and save the army the trouble of taking care of them when they bog down. They are liabilities, not assets, to the army and navy.

Exercise tests are used to attempt to measure the selectee's powers of endurance, but they are not regarded as very satisfactory.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
C. T. H.:—What causes color-blindness? Is there any cure for it?
Answer: Color blindness is strictly hereditary, affecting only males. There is no cure.

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

All county offices had been moved to the courthouse, offices of George E. Gerhardt, prosecutor, the last to be moved, having been transferred from the Masonic temple.

One of the outstanding church social events of the year was the reception at the Presbyterian church when more than 200 welcomed the Rev. and Mrs. Robert T. Kelsey who had just arrived.

Winter arrived in Circleville and Pickaway county in earnest with more than two inches of snow being recorded and the temperature falling to 12 degrees, the lowest mark of the season.

10 YEARS AGO

The meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at Hanley's at which the question of a Centralized clearing house for charity was to be discussed was creating high interest in the community.

Carl, seven-year-old son of Mrs. Irene Jenkins 152 East High street, was in Berger Hospital suffering from a fractured jaw and a deep cut on the left side of the neck. Witnesses said the youth walked from between two automobiles against the side of an automobile driven by a Columbus man.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Speakman of East Mound street entertained a group of friends of their son, George Dewey, on his fifteenth birthday anniversary.

25 YEARS AGO

The marriage of Miss Minnie A. Mogan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Mogan and Mr. Louis A. Friend took place in St. Joseph's Catholic church with the ceremony and nuptial low mass being celebrated at 8:30 a. m. by the Rev. Fr. J. S. Hannan.

James E. Sweetman, a son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Sweetman, was at Camp Wheeler, Ga., where he was a member of the regimental band.

Dr. B. R. Bales purchased the George G. Groom property on West Mound street and planned to move his family there on December 1.

An international organization, the Quetico-Superior council, has been formed to preserve the Quetico-Superior region through which runs the boundary between Canada and the United States. It is the Rainy Lake Pigeon river watershed, with some 10,000,000 acres. The area is nonagricultural and virtually uninhabited. The idea of the council is for the United States and Canada to jointly safeguard the area against private exploitation. Much of it is publicly owned by Canada and the United States.

The Liberty bell was the first bell struck on July 4th, 1776. It cracked in July, 1835, when it was tolling for the death of Chief Justice Marshall.

Road to Romance

By LOIS EBY and JOHN C. FLEMING

CHAPTER FORTY-FOUR

BRUCE STARED at the three in the lighted doorway with dumb bewilderment. "What do you mean? Isn't Mary here?"

Fran gave an hysterical laugh and turned back toward the living room, Burke following. Burke argued, "Now, look, Fran, she said she might be late."

"Not this late," Fran was tuning the police calls higher.

Bruce shut the door and strode after them. "But where is she?" he demanded angrily.

Bruce said distantly, "We have no idea."

"We thought she was with you—until we found out you were at Ciro's," Ken lashed out bitterly.

Bruce retorted, "I wasn't at Ciro's tonight!"

"Oh, you weren't?" Ken sneered. His freckles stood out belligerently in the white, strained misery of his face.

Bruce stared at the three in blank, mounting confusion. "Say—what's this all about?"

It was Fran who answered him, watching him closely as she spoke. "I was tuning in the police calls. We were worried about Mary—but not too worried, because we thought she'd met you and had forgotten the time. And then I happened to get Ciro's broadcast. The orchestra leader was just announcing your arrival—you and Tante. He said you'd have to hurry if you got that last dance."

Bruce brushed it off with a snort of disgust. "He must be going blind, or else it's a gag. But what about Mary?"

"She called about 11," Fran went on with effort, "and told me she might be a little late. She usually gets home by 12. We waited till one. We were impatient. You see, she knew we were planning to start for Yuma tonight to get married. She was going along. We finally called Ken. He told us to call the police. He came right over. He said he was afraid he knew why she was detained." Fran's nervous hand fluttered toward an open newspaper. Bruce saw his picture with Tante.

"My God!" he muttered. A cold dread went over him. "And it's a fake story!"

Ken sneered, "You've had a lot of frame-ups tonight."

Fran ignored the interruption and went racing on with her story. "And then some man called. Said he was from Nordex—we'd called there first. Said he thought he knew where Mary was, but that he expected her to be home before this. And we were to call him the minute she came in. He asked a lot of questions. He was plenty worried."

"But who was it?" cried Bruce. He pulled out a cigarette and found his hands shaking when he went to light it.

"He wouldn't give his name. There's his telephone number."

Bruce grabbed up the slip of paper and strode to the phone. "I'll have a talk with that guy . . . Then, as he started to dial, he gasped, 'I know that number.' He sat for a minute in frowning concentration, then added softly,

"That's Danver's private number—Danver, the head of the F. B. I. Mary must be working for him."

"You mean he's sent her out on some sleuthing job at this time of night?" demanded Bruce.

"And that's what she was doing with those thugs down at Jim's Joint!" Bruce went on slowly.

"Thugs!" cried Fran. Oh—

Ken cried, fury and anguish writhing in his voice, "I'll kill you for this, Bruce. If anything happens to her—I'll kill you!"

Bruce tried to calm him, but Bruce said dryly, "I wouldn't blame you." He could feel no antagonism toward Ken, only a half envious humility. Here was a man whose love was as devoted, as selfless as Mary's. Here was a man worthy of her.

"She's trying to clear your name!" Ken was shouting at him. "Getting herself killed to clear your name—when you're guilty! You and your handsome face and your crack-proof alibi! Always so careful to be at Ciro's when any sabotage is pulled at the plant!"

Bruce reached out to grab Ken's arm. "Wait a minute!" he cried, staring at him strangely. Then, in sudden dawning conviction, he whispered, "You're right! You're too right. When anything happened at Nordex, I—always was at Ciro's." He ground out his cigarette and grabbed his hat.

Ken cried, "Where are you going?"

"To Danver," Bruce flung back on his way to the door.

"Wait a minute!" cried Fran. "We're going with you!"

Mary knew she was cold only when her teeth began to chatter. It frightened her—not because she was cold, but because she didn't know how loud the chattering would get. Crouched along the wall in the blackness of the narrow back entrance, she could hear every whisper in the room beyond, and she wasn't taking any chances on the group of men in there hearing HER—not after the meeting she'd just eavesdropped in on. Cautionously she began to rub her arms to restore their circulation. She stood up and found out that one of her feet was asleep. She pushed it hard against the floor and clenched her teeth, enduring stabbing pricks while the blood rushed back into it. Fine time to have a foot asleep if the meeting broke up suddenly and she had to run for that taxi!

She hoped it was still waiting. The driver had been dubious about bringing her back up the hill after Joe Banks had gotten out and given his orders to take her home. Well, she could run down the hill to the nearest house. She had to get to a phone now—and fast. She tiptoed to the small window at the end of the hall and opened it carefully.

The cold air whipped in, the tangy salt air of the ocean mingled with spruce and eucalyptus. But there was no escape from his side. The rambling mansion had been built into a niche aloof out of the Hollywood hill. She would have to go down the way she and Joe Banks had come. She tried to remember their ride up the hill—there was a house two turns down.

She crept back through the white-sheathed furniture, the main entrance hall, listened for a last time to the rumble of voices in the conference room. She'd heard the series of telephone calls that had started the terrifying wheels of sabotage, the hard, crisp orders, the exact timing for every contributing action that revealed the elaborate preparations for this night's work. Now she must call Danver. She could tell him the exact location of this board-up hillside mansion. Or she could wait for the F. B. I. down by the road. She slipped up through the entrance hall on a last impulse. A thin mark of light showed the door to the conference room was slightly ajar. If she could get one peek at those faces—even just at the one who had been giving the orders, who had made the strange phone call to Ciro's about Bruce and Tante . . . where had she heard his voice?

She hesitated. It was a fool chance. Danver would be livid. And yet—just in case something happened to the raid, they'd never know who these men were . . . who that leader was. She crept on, her fingers touched the edge of the door, moved it slowly.

And suddenly the footsteps! Her quivering heart told her it was too late. She whirled and fled along the dark hall. Light flooded from the opened door behind her. Running footsteps thundered after her, and a man's iron grasp on her arm brought her to a gasping stop. His maddeningly familiar voice rang out, "If it isn't the little redhead!" And then she was pivoted roughly about to face him.

Today's Horoscope

Today's birthday children are prolific readers, glory in profound studies, and are interested in scientific pursuits. They are reliable, ambitious and always considerate of others. Their family life will be happy. They should try not to be too sensitive to criticism. Apart from a sudden upheaval, sharp quarrel—perhaps through their own indiscretion—or accident, their prospects are most propitious. Excellent time for business, finance and travel. In many ways the child born today will be very fortunate, but liable to suffer through impetuous or erratic conduct. Self-control should be taught early.

Hints on Etiquette

If you meet an author, and you have not read any of his books, you need not say so unless he asks you directly. Be an interested listener in his talk, and you can read up afterwards if you think you'd like the books.

Horoscope for Sunday

Dexterity, shrewdness, deep concentration and a liking for precision in work are the keynotes to the character of the persons who have birthdays today.

They are prudent and inclined to be concerned about the troubles of others. They are esteemed by all who know them. During the next year they should be watchful against unexpected domestic, love or business disagreements, otherwise their financial position greatly improves. Secret or uncommon pursuits prove most remunerative. Exceptional talent in occultism, philosophy, literature, wireless and ultra-modern professions generally will be evidenced by the child who is born on this date. The fortunes will be good, but love troubles are threatened.

STARS SAY—

For Saturday, November 21

OF ENDURING and stabilizing influence is a notable lunar aspect which should be permitted to find expression by refraining from tumultuous, impetuous and quarrelsome or vindictive conduct, which might have force to set aside or postpone some really worthwhile efforts. With poise, prudence and sound judgment there may be promise of building basic foundations for future development and long-term success. This may concern industry, investments, savings or securities of established worth.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a year of some safe and sound success, gained by labor, rational ideas, savings, investments or long-term securities. Property is also on a firm foundation, but this is all subject to risk or jeopardy by impetuous, rash emotionalism or indulgence in whims or "hunches." Also there may be danger from a public or group entanglement or scheme.

A child born on this day although earnest, competent and industrious may be carried away by its emotions or impulses.

For Sunday, November 22

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds augury of major events moving to sound but swift denouement, in which all the affairs of church, clergy sabbath conventions as well as the higher professions and vocations find firm basis, fortified by real inspiration or cultural stimuli. There may be peculiar and intriguing factors in this astral setup, calling for much discretion and good sense. It is a time for travel, change and renewal of contracts.

If It Is Your Birthday
Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very important and promising year which may bring many solid benefits and opportunities, as well as pleasant change, happy and lucrative contacts, travel, publicity, and romance and fair fortune. Such combinations might, however, be imperiled by outbursts not guided by reason. A child born on this day should possess exceptional talents and creative ability, with leanings toward the occult, mystical and philosophical.

Renick Dunlap Speaks To Presbyterian Women

European Tour

Address

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Renick W. Dunlap of Congo Farm, near Kingston, was guest speaker Friday at the meeting of the Women's Social club of the Presbyterian church held in the social room. Mr. Dunlap, former assistant secretary of agriculture, used "Over There" as his subject, telling of many interesting experiences he had on a trip abroad in 1928 when he was chairman of a delegation to the World's Dairy Congress, his talk specializing in agricultural interest.

He told of meeting Neville Chamberlain, at that time health commissioner, Lord and Lady Astor, and of visiting their home. He also met the King of England and his son, the present king, telling of seeing them at the Royal Livestock show which he mentioned as being of unusual magnificence.

His running comments carried the audience with him in visits to various places in England, France, Belgium, Holland and Germany and he discussed peculiar phases of agriculture that came to his notice in these countries.

The underlying theme of Mr. Dunlap's fine talk was loyalty to our country and the background, the basic part agriculture plays in our country's all-out War effort. He concluded by saying that as he came into New York Harbor on his return, the Statue of Liberty looked very good to him and in all his travels nothing compared to the U.S.A., or Ohio, or Pickaway county!

Mrs. Clark Will opened the meeting by reading a Thanksgiving prayer; Mrs. B. T. Hedges reported as secretary and Mrs. H. O. Pile, as treasurer. Mrs. E. O. Crites, chairman of the program committee, presented Mr. Dunlap. A voluntary donation of fruit and jellies for the Christmas baskets of the Circleville Benevolent association will be taken to the December session.

TEACHERS WORK DOUBLE TIME AS GAS IS RATIONED

Gas rationing registration may have been inconvenient for the housewife whose schedule was somewhat upset, for the factory worker whose hours prevented his "going back to school" from 3:30 until 9:00, and for others in various occupations. But for the nation's school teachers it meant additional hours of work. At the request of the government they donated their services.

For many school pupils it brought a brief vacation, and for some few it meant additional hours of employment.

In many cities and towns school was not in session Wednesday, Thursday or Friday afternoons. In Pickaway county, however, this was not the case. Out in the county registration was in progress from 4:00 until 9:00 while in Circleville it started at 3:30.

Pupils in the local school were dismissed at 2:45. The six one hour period schedule was changed temporarily during this emergency. No classes were omitted since the periods were shortened to forty-five minutes.

Locally the registration was under the supervision of the gas rationing board. Principal J. Wray Henry was the chairman of the organization at the high school, with Miss Lucile Neuding and Miss Peggy Parks acting as sub-chairmen.

CHS BASKETBALL SEASON DEPENDS UPON RATIONING

When asked about basketball at C. H. S., which may be curtailed because of gas rationing, Virgil M. Cress, faculty manager, was quoted as saying, "We intend to carry on basketball this season if at all possible." From that statement can be gathered all that is known about the coming basketball season.

Taking it for granted that we will have basketball, Coach Roy M. Black has ordered practice to start Wednesday, November 25, just six days before the game at Lancaster December 1.

Fifteen boys will go to all league games. Five of these will be designated for the starting varsity, and thus will be prohibited from the reserve game.

League schedule this year is:

Dec. 4 Greenfield there
Dec. 18 Hillsboro here
Jan. 8 Wilmington here
Jan. 12 Wash., C.H. there
Jan. 22 Hillsboro there
Jan. 29 Wilmington there
Feb. 5 Wash., C.H. there
Feb. 19 Greenfield here

The first home game will be December 8 when Upper Arlington comes to Circleville.

Program for intramurals this year will be carried out similar to that of last year.

EDITORIAL

OUR WORLD TO WIN
Right now we are fighting to end all debts—not debts of money but debts of injustice, aggression, individual bondage, economic and political slavery, tyranny, revenge, hatreds, and human misery. Our main concern now is to win the war, but we must think of how we are going to make peace terms after this horrible conflict.

After this war we must not sink our navy and immediately our armies, but we must keep ourselves always on the alert for demons like Hitler and Hirohito. If we do this we will be ready for them and knock them down faster than they can rise.

When we no longer have to worry about whether or not our boys are safe we shall need something to keep us united. This most likely will be the great desire we have for the four human freedoms—freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom from want, and freedom from fear.

Think of conditions after the war when many peoples of Europe, Africa, Asia, Australia, and in the islands of the Pacific will be homeless, hungry, and utterly depressed. These people will have had their homes burned and bombed, their beautiful land black and scorched, and their loved ones killed. We will be the people they will look to for reorganization and support. Will we be prepared for this? It is up to you and me.

CHS GRID TEAM WINDS UP BEST SEASON IN YEARS

Football season at C. H. S. is over and the Tigers have finished the most successful grid campaign that they have had since some time before the oldest boy on the '42 squad was born.

In winning six and losing two Circleville had a total of 93 first-downs to their opponents 54 (unofficial) and scored 102 points to 39.

Tommy Shea lead the scoring for the year with 42 points. Following him in order are Carl Bach 24; Dud Smallwood 16; Emmett Dade 12; Don Sowers 7, and Blenn Cook 1.

All members of the backfield scored but Edward Heath, "Freck" scored in a touchdown in the Chillicothe C. C. game only to have it called back for a holding penalty. Although he didn't cross the goal line his specialty was carrying the ball into scoring territory. Probably his best game of the season was the Greenfield game.

In your reporter's opinion the most spectacular play of the season was in the Hillsboro game when Tom Shea intercepted a Hillsboro pass and skirled the right end for 55 yards and the game winning touchdown.

The Tigers lose four members of their varsity this year by graduation. Quarter-back Carl Bach, right tackle Dick Wells, left guard Earl Wallace and full back, right tackle Dud Smallwood.

Carl Bach, one of the co-captains, led the team on the gridiron as a good field general and acting captain. It is reported that when Dud Smallwood hit the line from the fullback the opposing line men were heard to ask where that train came from. Co-Captain Dick Wells and Earl Wallace's specialties were knocking down all interference and getting the tackle. The team will miss all of these boys.

TWO FILMS ARE SHOWN IN C.H.S.
High school pupils saw two motion pictures Wednesday afternoon.

The first was a film on Virginia, which divided this territory into different areas—the Piedmont, Shenandoah Valley, Coastal Plain and other districts. The film first showed the sections and then followed views of the important cities, structures, industries, and places of natural beauty.

"More Dangerous than Dynamite" was the second film. In telling the tragic story of a housewife engaged in cleaning clothing at home this film accented gasoline as one of the most dangerous fire hazards. It brought out the lack of equipment to control and prevent explosion in the home in comparison to the facilities for such control in state inspected and controlled dry cleaning establishments.

These films were furnished by the State Department of Education.

PUPILS TRANSFER AND WITHDRAW FROM SCHOOL
During the past few weeks 13 people have transferred or withdrawn from high school. Robert Burgett has transferred to Logan and Daniel Hulse to Columbus.

Edgar Friedman, who entered the junior class this year from Lancaster, transferred this week to Dayton.

"Eddie" finished the football season as end on the varsity team. He was one of our better punters this year.

The ten people who have withdrawn are Fedalma Cooper, Norma Clifton, Paris Keaton, Paul Kirby, Joseph Pence, Delbert Puckett, Hazel Robinson, Charles Robison, Dorothy Sabine, and Sonia Thomas.

NEW MATERIAL ON AMERICA IN H. S. LIBRARY

Members of the E. M. S., and library assistants have prepared two bulletin boards calling attention to "National Book Week".

"Forward with Books about America" is the theme of the bulletin board in the lower hall. Attractive and colorful jackets of recent publications surround the United States shield which is decorated with American flags. Some of the book jackets displayed are "Up From Slavery", by Booker T. Washington; "Hardly A Man Is Now Alive" the autobiography of Dan Beard; "Knickerbocker's History of New York", Washington Irving; "The Raven" the life story of Sam Houston told by Marquis James.

In the library the bulletin board is on the same theme. It is centered with a large map of the United States, and on each side are more book jackets. Included among these are "Give A Man A Horse" by Charles J. Finger; Carl Sandburg's "The American Songbook"; "Birds of America" prepared under the auspices of the University Society, "Our Fighting Ships" by Mitchell D. Katz, Jr., Herbert C. Lee, and Edwin L. Levy, Jr.; "Everyday Things In American Life" told by William C. Langdon.

Miss Gretchen Moeller supervised the arrangement of the material on the boards.

E. M. S. members have volunteered to work in the library one hour out of every two weeks. This is one of the projects of the club for the 1942-43 year. Library assistants are Phyllis Clark, Donna Jean Higgins, Ann Moeller, Mary Ellen Root, Mark Schumm, and Margaret Ward.

HI-YIANS "SLAVE" TO HAVE DANCE
Last night a crew of Hi-Yians had the task of changing a rationing office into a dance floor. At 9 p. m., when teachers folded up their equipment and threw their arms into the air to shake off writer's cramp, the crew rushed in.

The boys had just a half hour to remove all the paper, tables, chairs, and teachers, to set up the music system and microphone, fix refreshments and put that last minute check on everything for the Swing Shift dance.

First couples arrived around 9:30; the scales were waiting. Yes, admission was one-half cent per pound of the girl; stags, 35 cents.

After the room was filled, the balloon dances started. A balloon was tied to a shoe of each girl. A slight riot followed, for during the dancing the boys had to protect their partner's balloon and try to burst all those around. The winner received a box of candy.

Two door prizes were drawn from the fish bowl later. First prize was an old delapidated tire. Second prize was a package of chewing gum and two lumps of sugar all done up a cubical box measuring about three feet.

Chances were sold on the number of corn kernels in a quart jar. There were "cokes" for the thirsty.

Money received at the "shindig" will help in paying the Hi-Y pledge to the local War Chest.

Renick Dunlap Speaks To Presbyterian Women

European Tour Is Subject Of Address

Renick W. Dunlap of Congo Farm, near Kingston, was guest speaker Friday at the meeting of the Women's Social club of the Presbyterian church held in the social room. Mr. Dunlap, former assistant secretary of agriculture, used "Over There" as his subject, telling of many interesting experiences he had on a trip abroad in 1928 when he was chairman of a delegation to the World's Dairy Congress, his talk specializing in agricultural interest.

He told of meeting Neville Chamberlain, at that time health commissioner, Lord and Lady Astor, and of visiting their home. He also met the King of England and his son, the present king, telling of seeing them at the Royal Livestock show which he mentioned as being of unusual magnificence. His running comments carried the audience with him in visits to various places in England, France, Belgium, Holland and Germany and he discussed peculiar phases of agriculture that came to his notice in these countries.

The underlying theme of Mr. Dunlap's fine talk was loyalty to our country and the background, the basic part agriculture plays in our country's all-out war effort. He concluded by saying that as he came into New York Harbor on his return, the Statue of Liberty looked very good to him and in all his travels nothing compared to the U.S.A., or Ohio, or Pickaway county!

Mrs. Clark Will opened the meeting by reading a Thanksgiving prayer; Mrs. B. T. Hedges reported as secretary and Mrs. H. O. Pile, as treasurer. Mrs. E. O. Crites, chairman of the program committee, presented Mr. Dunlap. A voluntary donation of fruit and jellies for the Christmas baskets of the Circleville Benevolent association will be taken to the December session.

Refreshments were served at the close of the evening. The tea table had a bright centerpiece of bitter-sweet flanked by candles of the same shade in triple crystal holders. Mrs. David S. Dunlap and Mrs. William Mack presided. The committee included Mrs. Dunlap and Mrs. Crites as co-chairmen, other members being Mrs. Channing Vreberome, Miss Mary Walters, Mrs. Lincoln Madigan, Miss Mary K. May, Miss Virginia Marion, Mrs. Frank Marion, Mrs. D. A. Yates, Mrs. Melvin Yates, Mrs. A. Hulse Hays, Mrs. A. D. Farming in Southern Ohio

BY THOMAS BERRY

TWO INTERESTING ALFALFA FIELDS

I just passed two interesting alfalfa fields, side by side, with just a fence between them. One was seeded early in the Summer and is green and vigorous, even if we have had some hard freezing weather, and the other is wilted and has a pale green color. How would you account for that?

I don't know, but I would like to know. One would think that the well established stand would endure the cold weather better than the new seeding. I am of the opinion, however, that a lack of available plant food in the field showing low resistance to some adverse weather, is the explanation. While alfalfa is a deep feeder, and uses food nutrients far below what the grass crops use, it is also a liberal feeder, and must be well supplied with lime and phosphorus, and when it gets a little low in vitality, it responds quickly to nitrate fertilizer.

I know of one man who gave his alfalfa a "shot in the arm" as he expressed it, by using nitrate of soda rather generously. He thought it aided the nodular growth as well as the lateral feeding roots, and helped to stimulate the plant and get a lot of new foliage started. Since nitrate fertilizers are not now available, one must rely on manure as a substitute, and it is a very good substitute, even if you do run the risk of introducing some weed seeds that you may later need to remove by cultivation, following a hay crop.

In closing I'd say that a heavy application of manure would be a good thing for the weakened field of alfalfa, so easily damaged by the freezing weather.

SHREDDING CORN

It is delayed some this fall, on account of the recent heavy rains, but there is still plenty of time to shred. One will be tempted to shred now, before the fodder is quite dry enough, which would be a mistake, for wet fodder is pretty sure to mould in the mow, and not be of much value. It might even be a feed hazard, with a lot of dynamite in it, as one man expressed it; for you can easily get forage poisoning, impaction, etc. I did one year and almost lost a valuable cow, and took a big loss in the reduction of the milk flow, as a result of her sickness, for it didn't come back to normal during the lactation period.

CUTTING UP THE WHEAT

"Look at those wagon tracks. That man is surely cutting up his wheat field getting his corn to the shredder," a friend, who was riding with me, recently said.

The field was deeply rutted but since it is level it won't wash much in the rains, and they will close in a few months and can scarcely be seen.

"But will the stand of wheat be injured?" you may think. It will, but since wheat puts out many lateral tillers, when the stand is thin, if there is an abundance of plant food material, it will soon thicken up.

Cutting the wheat with wagon tracks won't do it any good though; and preventing this is a good argument for putting a lot of corn into the silo, or cutting it fine and blowing it into mows, well lined with building paper, to exclude air, while the weather is still warm.

I was on a farm in Green county last year, where almost all of the corn crop was cut and blown into the mows. In this year, corn and all, while the weather was still warm, in late September and the first few days of October.

The owner of the farm said he was through freezing himself shredding, when one could do a better job of setting the corn in earlier, and just after wheat sowing, while the ground was still dry.

Of course the corn stover had a lot of water in it, this early in the Fall, and went through a stage of arrested fermentation, but it came out of it all right and looked like silage and smelt like it. The young beef cattle, and some that were almost ready to sell, ate it readily and did well on it.

SOLVING THE RAT PROBLEM

I am having some experience solving a rat problem similar to what many folks have. I seem to be making some progress too. The feed is kept in bins so that the rats can't get to it, and a rat dog, with a small pup, big enough to go along with her, "hounds them all the time," as someone has described the persistent work of a good rat dog.

The mother seems to be enjoying the experience. She hunts and kills the rats for pleasure for she doesn't eat them. She eats mice though, and gets a lot of them. It is interesting to watch her eating a mouse. A few quick chews on one side, a quick change to the other side of her mouth and a few swallows and all you see is the tail sticking out one side of her face; one more quick swallow and it too disappears.

If the rats are troubling you try this rat dog and pup combination. It works.

WAGONS ON THE ROAD AT NIGHT

That's what I am seeing occasionally, and sometimes they do not have a lantern with them. This is a very dangerous thing to do, for an automobile driver can be very close to you, before he knows you are there.

While late trips on the road, as you come home from shredding, at this time of year, are unavoidable, it is surely wise to take a lantern along, to light the way home, if you think there is any chance of getting back after dark.

Of course it won't do much good unless you light it. That reminds me of a law suit, where the fate of the defendant hinged on whether he carried a lantern or not. The lawyer for the prosecution tried hard to prove that he did not have a lantern, but the defendant went on the stand and swore that he did have it. He was on the way home, when he said to a friend, "I was wondering why that lawyer didn't ask me if the lantern was lighted, for I had forgotten to light it."

SORGHUM MOLASSES

T. N. Surgeon, Hillsboro, R. F. D. 4, reports producing 19 gallons of molasses on about an eighth of an acre this year. The quality was excellent, too, for he gave me a sample and I tested it and had Mrs. Berry test it on the table, and in ginger bread.

The seed was mixed with the fertilizer and drilled a little later than corn planting. The sorghum started later than corn, so it was hard to cultivate while it was small, but it soon caught up with the corn crop, and was no harder to plow than corn.

The blades were stripped off just after corn cutting. If this is not done it is hard to get all the juice out of the stalks, when it is run through the mill.

John Hayne of East Monroe, near Greenfield, Ohio, made the molasses. He has a modern plant I understand, and heats the sap with steam, which keeps the temperature uniform, so there is little danger of scorching the molasses, which is an easy thing to do.

I learned of a man who had 140 gallons of sorghum molasses this year, but I haven't had time yet to learn the details of how he produced the crop, in this day of scarcity of farm labor.

Michigan Takes Favorite's Role

Wolverines Hold 6-5 Edge In Betting With Game Time Nearing; Tom James To Play

COLUMBUS, Nov. 21 — Before the largest crowd of the collegiate gridiron season, Ohio State's once-beaten Buckeyes collide today with mighty Michigan in Ohio stadium. Some 76,000 witnesses are expected to jam the Buckeye horseshoe to see the Western Conference champion aspirations of each team settled.

Michigan was an eleventh hour, 6-5, choice in the betting by virtue of the Wolverine's powerful 32-20 conquest of Notre Dame last Saturday and in view of the fact that Tommy James, Ohio's "game breaking" runner, can see only very limited service at the most because of a shoulder separation suffered in the Illinois game a week ago.

Coach Paul Brown, in his second year at the helm of the Buckeyes, stated that "James will only be used as a 'spot' runner, if we use him at all, but he definitely does not figure in our plans."

PICKAWAY WINS 39 TO 25 OVER SALT CREEK FIVE

Pickaway township's cage team continued to show strength Friday night when it turned back Salt Creek, 39 to 25, on the Pickaway county court.

Pickaway was paced by Bobby Young and Jim Wolford, the former getting 16 points and the latter 10. John Miller, last year's star of the Pirate team, has been unable to play because of a hand injury. Strous was Salt Creek's star with 11 points.

Pickaway reserves won a 17 to 7 preliminary.

WILLIE PEP TO SEEK TITLE AS CHALKY FAILS

By Jack Mahon

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—Wee Willie Pep, a pint-sized package of vitamin pills equipped with boxing gloves, holds New York's version of the world's featherweight championship today and if the plans of Promoter Mike Jacobs materialize will meet Pittsburgh Jackie Wilson, the national boxing association's 126-pound king, in his next title bout here in February.

Promoter Jacobs, extremely happy over a gross gate of $71,868.70 contributed by a mob of 19,521 citizens, as Pep, from Hartford, Conn., won a unanimous verdict over Chalky Wright of Los Angeles in fifteen in and out rounds at Madison Square Garden last night, said he was very confident of clearing up the 126-pound muddle by February.

Wilson and his manager, Jake Lakin, were in Pep's dressing room after he had stabbed, twisted and ran away from Wright to win an easy verdict over the much more experienced colored battler. Both were more than willing to agree to a match to determine the real featherweight king.

Pep's manager, Lou Viscusi, however, did not appear anxious to rush his charge. "Boxing Commissioner Frank Koskey of Connecticut said he was going to petition the N. B. A. to have Willie recognized as world's champion," said Lou, "and we'll wait till President Abe Greene decides on that before we consider any title matches. Pep is willing to fight anyone but we won't make any decisions for a couple of days because Willie has been fighting regularly and I think he deserves a rest."

After watching Willie (whose real name is Papaleo, and who used to be a bootblack) become the shining light in Promoter Jacobs' optics we think his manager has the right idea.

BULLDOGS FAVORED

COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 21—Favored to win their 10th game of the season, the undefeated and untied Georgia Bulldogs clashed with the Auburn Elmsmen today in a southeastern conference contest. Today's game marked the 47th meeting between teams of the two schools, the rivalry dating back to 1892. The Bulldogs have won 21 while Auburn has taken 20. Five were ties. While Georgia has won its nine previous starts of the season, Auburn has been beaten four times and has been tied once.

Ed's dreams of the South Seas were ripe when he was covering the World's Fair in 1940 and in off hours he would explain to fellow reporters just the kind of a grass shack he would want, on an island all his own.

Today, a letter—first to be received from Boughton since he entered the Army some months ago—was being passed around among his old friends.

Dated "somewhere in the south Pacific," the missive began: "The first day I arrived here a couple of native boys turned up and wanted some work. Having always wanted that grass shack—remember?—I started them to work immediately."

With bribes of many cigarettes, the shack was finally completed, Boughton explained, his dreams of viewing the broad expanse of the blue Pacific from his doorway have come true.

About This And That In Many Sports

If Friday afternoon's Buckeye-Wolverine freshman game set the stage for the varsity joust this afternoon then some 76,000 persons are going to get an eyeful of knock-down-and-drag-out football. . . . The scrap was a roughy, with a shoulder dislocation taking place on the first play, a slashed chin bobbing up in the same period, a twisted ankle being inflicted before the half ended, and other injuries appearing from time to time. . . . But the baby Bucks are worthy counterparts of their elders, being able to give and take with the best. . . . The frosh crew coached by Ernie Godfrey is bigger than the varsity outfit, and although lacking the finesse of the first string, could give a good account of itself in any company. . . .

The Wolverines, paced by a halfback named Walterhouse, a splendid center named Kern, were plenty good forcing the Bucks the whole way. . . .

The smashing of Joe Whisler, the tackle play and kicking of L. Groza, the passing of Tommy Phillips, the end play of Demando, Massillon youth, and Dixon, the jackrabbit running of Jeffries, a colored halfback, featured stat play. . . . In the hard-fought 16-14 victory, Whisler scored both Ohio touchdowns. Groza kicked one point, missed the second and boot of a 32-yard field goal which spelled victory. . . . At the time the kick the score was 13-7 in favor of Ohio, the boot merely clinching the affray since Michigan tallied in the last quarter to cut the 16-7 lead to 16-14. . . .

GOPHERS MEET BADGER 11 AT CAMP RANDALL

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 21 — A crowd of 45,000 was booked for at Camp Randall stadium today the University of Wisconsin took the field against the Badgers' traditional gridiron foe, the University of Minnesota.

Minnesota, which has been down during the current season, has little chance for the Big Ten title which it has held for two successive years, but Coach George Hauser's men had an excellent chance of ending Badger pennant hopes.

Four of the finest backs of the Big Ten were on display today—Bill Daley and Herman Frickey for Minnesota and Pat Harder and Elroy Hirsch for the Badgers. The "Cophers' fate apparently hinged on just how long Daley would be able to play. The Minnesota left halfback has been greatly hampered by injuries.

ARMY AND NAVY TO WIN $100,000 FOR RADIO RIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—The Army and Navy relief societies were $100,000 richer today after receiving a check for that amount in payment for the radio broadcasting rights to their football game at Annapolis November 28.

The check, which will be split between the societies, was presented by J. F. Skehan, sales manager of Esso Marketeers, which purchased the rights; R. T. Haslam, vice-president and J. A. Miller, advertising manager, to officials of the Army and Navy at a reception here last night.

The broadcast will be nationwide and featured also by a short wave transmission system which will carry it to army and navy outposts all over the world.

CHECKS PUT IN MAILS TO SERIES CONTESTANTS

CHICAGO, Nov. 21—With the champion St. Louis Cardinals taking the lion's share of the loot, world series checks today were on their way to Cardinal and New York Yankee players as well as to members of other first division clubs of both leagues.

Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis announced the amounts as follows:

Farming in Southern Ohio

BY THOMAS BERRY

TWO INTERESTING ALFALFA FIELDS

I just passed two interesting alfalfa fields, side by side, with a fence between them. One was seeded early in the summer and is green and vigorous, even if we have had some hard freezing weather, and the other is wilted and has a pale green color. Would you account for that?

I don't know, but I would like to know. One would think that the well established stand would endure the cold weather better than the new seeding. I am of the opinion, however, that a lack of available plant food in the field showing low resistance to some adverse weather, is the explanation. While alfalfa is a deep feeder, and uses food nutrients far below what the grass crops use, it is also a liberal feeder, and must be well supplied with lime and phosphorus, and when it gets a little low in vitality, it responds quickly to nitrate fertilizer.

I know of one man who gave his alfalfa a "shot in the arm" as he expressed it, by using nitrate of soda rather generously. He thought it aided the nodular growth as well as the lateral feeding roots, and helped to stimulate the plant and get a lot of new foliage started. Since nitrate fertilizers are not now available, one must rely on manure as a substitute, and it is a very good substitute, even if you do run the risk of introducing some weed seeds that you may later need to remove by cultivation, following a hay crop.

In closing I'd say that a heavy application of manure would be a good thing for the weakened field of alfalfa, so easily damaged by the freezing weather.

SHREDDING CORN

It is delayed some this fall, on account of the recent heavy rains, but there is still plenty of time to shred. One will be tempted to shred now, before the fodder is quite dry enough, which would be a mistake, for wet fodder is pretty sure to mold in the mow, and not be of much value. It might even be a feed hazard, with a lot of dynamite in it, as one man expressed it; for you can easily get forage poisoning, impaction, etc. I did one year and almost lost a valuable cow, and took a big loss in the reduction of the milk flow, as a result of her sickness, for it didn't come back to normal during the lactation period.

CUTTING UP THE WHEAT

"Look at those wagon tracks. That man is surely cutting up his wheat field getting his corn to the shredder," a friend, who was riding with me, recently said.

The field was deeply rutted but since it is level it won't wash much in the ruts, and they will close in a few months and can scarcely be seen.

"But will the stand of wheat be injured?" you may think. It will, but since wheat puts out many lateral tillers, when the stand is thin, if there is an abundance of plant food material, it will soon thicken up.

Cutting the wheat with wagon tracks won't do it any good though; and preventing this is a good argument for putting a lot of corn into the silo, or cutting it fine and blowing it into mows, well lined with building paper, to exclude air, while the weather is still warm.

I was on a farm in Green county last year, where almost all of the corn crop was cut and blown into the mows. In this way, corn and all, while the weather was still warm, in late September and the first few days of October.

The owner of the farm said he was through freezing himself shredding, when one could do a better job of setting the corn in earlier, and just after wheat sowing, while the ground was still dry.

Of course the corn stover had a lot of water in it, this early in the fall, and went through a stage of arrested fermentation, but it came out of it all right and looked like silage and smelt like it. The young beef cattle, and some that were almost ready to sell, ate it readily and did well on it.

SOLVING THE RAT PROBLEM

I am having some experience solving a rat problem similar to what many folks have. I seem to be making some progress too. The feed is kept in bins so that the rats can't get to it, and a rat dog, with a small pup, big enough to go along with her, "hounds them all the time," as someone has described the persistent work of a good rat dog.

The mother seems to be enjoying the experience. She hunts and kills the rats for pleasure she doesn't eat them. She eats mice though, and gets a lot of them. It is interesting to watch her eating a mouse. A few quick chews on one side, a quick change to the other side of her mouth and a few swallows and all you see is the tail sticking out one side of her face; one more quick swallow and it too disappears.

If the rats are troubling you try this rat dog and pup combination. It works.

WAGONS ON THE ROAD AT NIGHT

That's what I am seeing occasionally, and sometimes they do not have a lantern with them. This is a very dangerous thing to do, for an automobile driver can be very close to you, before he knows you are there.

While late trips on the road, as you come home from shredding, at this time of year, are unavoidable, it is surely wise to take a lantern along, to light the way home, if you think there is any chance of getting back after dark.

Of course it won't do much good unless you light it. That reminds me of a law suit, where the fate of the defendant hinged on whether he carried a lantern or not. The lawyer for the prosecution tried hard to prove that he did not have a lantern, but the defendant went on the stand and swore that he did have it. He was on the way home, when he said to a friend, "I was wondering why that lawyer didn't ask me if the lantern was lighted, for I had forgotten to light it."

SORGHUM MOLASSES

T. N. Surgeon, Hillsboro, R. F. D. 4, reports producing 19 gallons of molasses on about an eighth of an acre this year. The quality was excellent, too, for he gave me a sample and I tested it and had Mrs. Berry test it on the table, and in ginger bread.

The seed was mixed with the fertilizer and drilled a little later than corn planting. The sorghum started later than corn, so it was hard to cultivate while it was small, but it soon caught up with the corn crop, and was no harder to plow than corn.

The blades were stripped off just after corn cutting. If this is not done it is hard to get all the juice out of the stalks, when it is run through the mill.

John Hayne of East Monroe, near Greenfield, Ohio, made the molasses. He has a modern plant I understand, and heats the sap with steam, which keeps the temperature uniform, so there is little danger of scorching the molasses, which is an easy thing to do.

I learned of a man who had 140 gallons of sorghum molasses this year, but I haven't had time yet to learn the details of how he produced the crop, in this day of scarcity of farm labor.

BULLDOGS FAVORED

COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 21—Favored to win their 10th game of the season, the undefeated and untied Georgia Bulldogs clashed with the Auburn Tigers today in a southeastern conference contest.

Today's game marked the 47th meeting between teams of the two schools, the rivalry dating back to 1892. The Bulldogs have won 21 while Auburn has taken 20. Five were ties. While Georgia has won its nine previous starts of the season, Auburn has been beaten four times and has been tied once.

This throws a heavy burden on the shoulders of George Slusser, 165-pound sophomore, who will be the first replacement for Paul Sarringhaus at left half or Les Horvath at right half, necessitated by Bob Frye's broken leg and James' injury along with the disablement of two other lesser reserves.

The average fan, let alone the experts, dared not venture a prediction as to the outcome other than it would be a very high-scoring battle, and the team that was "on" would probably be returned the victor.

Conditioning Vital

The success or failure of the Michigan team lies in the first eleven's ability to stay in the game for 60 minutes because the Wolves are weak in matter of line replacements, and in this the excellent physical condition of Ohio State was expected to become a major factor.

Michigan has a line of "iron men" attested by the fact that five of them played the entire 60 minutes against Notre Dame, as did two of the backs.

On paper, Michigan's first team seemed to rate a slight edge but when the substitutes are taken into consideration, the game once again reverts to a toss-up. Past performances never mean a thing, anyway, when these age-old rivals mix it up on the gridiron.

Victory for Ohio State will give the Bucks a clear cut Big Ten title, while a Michigan conquest will merely postpone the title-bearing tilt until next week when they play host to Iowa.

All-Americans There

This will be the major test for these prospective All-Americans because the eyes and ears of the collegiate realm are focused right on Ohio stadium for this "game of the day."

The meeting, 39th between the two schools, will find Ohio State trying to score its first victory over a Fritz Crisler-coached team, the Bucks not having entered the win column over their arch-rivals since 1937. Last year's game, Paul Brown's first crack at Michigan, found the two teams battling to a 20-20 tie, so the Wolves will be seeking their first victory at the expense of the former high school coach.

BERTELLI, GRAHAM MEET IN SOUTH BEND FEATURE

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 21—Northwestern and Notre Dame took the field today prepared to "shoot the works" in the ancient rivalry between the two schools.

Northwestern, with a record of having won only one game during the season, a 3 to 0 triumph over Texas university, was relegated to the position of underdog despite the mediocre season of the Irish, who have lost two and have been tied once.

The 30,000 spectators expected for Notre Dame's final home game, were said to witness a passing duel between Angelo Bertelli of the Irish and Northwestern's Otto Graham.

SAILORS FAVORED OVER FIGHTING ILLINI CREW

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 21 — Greatly outweighted and "out-experienced," the University of Illinois took the field in Memorial stadium today against the Great Lakes naval training station eleven.

The sailors, who have rolled up 116 points to none by their opponents in the last four games, were heavily favored to crush the small but fighting Illinois team.

ARMY AND NAVY TO WIN $100,000 FOR RADIO RIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—The Army and Navy relief societies were $100,000 richer today after receiving a check for that amount in payment for the radio broadcasting rights to their football game at Annapolis November 28.

The check, which will be split between the societies, was presented by J. F. Skehan, sales manager of Esso Motor Stations, which purchased the rights; R. T. Haslam, vice-president and J. A. Miller, advertising manager, to officials of the Army and Navy at a reception here last night.

The broadcast will be nationwide and featured also by a short wave transmission system which will carry it to army and navy outposts all over the world.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The modern Submarine costs approximately $3,000,000. Torpedo warfare on the sea was highly developed in World War I and America has kept pace and is building the most efficient Subs in the world today. The newest submarines displace about 1,500 tons.

Scores of these under-sea craft are under construction in U. S. Navy Yards for service wherever they are needed. The voluntary purchase of War Bonds by Americans everywhere will insure our Navy parity with our enemies, the Japs and the Nazis. Invest at least ten percent of your income in War Bonds every pay day so we can have the "Subs" we need.

BAG LIMIT OF RABBITS TAKEN IN ALL AREAS

Never Saw So Many Shooters Before Says Conservation Chief Of District

HOT WEATHER SLOWS PACE

No Accidents Reported And Few Are Arrested For Law Violations

Circleville and Pickaway county hunters returned to the field again Saturday after hundreds of them took part in an opening day which was declared by sportsmen and conservation officers as the greatest Ohioans have experienced for many years.

Veteran hunters, men designated by the State Conservation Department and other observers declared that there were more hunters in the field Friday than any day in their recollection. The day was too warm for enjoyable hunting, but the sunshine helped to boost the number of persons seeking rabbits and pheasants, and reports from all parts of the county indicate that more hunters were able to gain the limit, especially in rabbits, than on any first day in years. Hundreds of pheasants also were taken.

A careful check up Saturday by conservation officers disclosed that not a single serious injury took place in this district. Several minor mishaps were reported, but none in which hospitalization was required.

Frank Hard of Washington C. H., who supervises 12 counties for the state Conservation Council, spent the day in the Circleville area. "I never saw so many hunters," Hard said, "and so much game shot."

The conservation officer declared that despite the hundreds of men who have been called into service the fields were filled with men and women from noon until the 'stop hunting' hour of 6:30.

Mr. Hard said that there were so many new hunters in the field this year, young men never before interested in hunting but who now have high paying jobs; older men in the field for possibly the first time in 20 years. The state game official said there were more shots missed Friday than probably ever in history, because so many of the hunters were new.

"It's a mystery to me," Hard said, "why there were not some serious injuries." He referred to the number of new hunters in the field.

Mr. Hard covered Pickaway county with the regularly designated conservation officers, Clarence Francis and Irvin Patrick, and with Guy Forbin of Knox county, assigned here.

Violations were few, the officers said, although some rabbits proved very costly to several hunters.

Ralph Warnock, 708 Elm street, Portsmouth, went to county jail when he was unable to pay $98.50 assessed him by Squire B. T. Hedges for having five rabbits above the limit. He was fined $15 for each rabbit, and costs in each case.

Ross Shaffer of 147 Plum street, Chillicothe, was fined $59.10 for having three rabbits above the limit. His fine, also in Hedges' court, was $15 and costs for each rabbit.

George Bennett of Chillicothe Route 1 paid $15 and costs of $4.70 for having one rabbit over the limit. He was also before Squire Hedges.

James Brooks of Circleville Route 2 paid $15 and costs Friday for possessing a rabbit Thursday, one day ahead of the hunting season.

Hunting was permitted from noon until 6:30 p. m. the first day, but from now until the end of the season sportsmen may enter the field at 8:30 a. m. and hunt until 6:30. Game protectors point out the need for hunters obtaining written permission from property owners before going on their land.

SOUGHT TO GIVE GIRLS A THRILL AND IS JAILED

Ben Keaton, 23, of West Liberty, Ky., arrested here last Saturday night and turned over to Lockbourne air base military police, was lodged in Columbus city prison Friday under $1,000 bond for illegal use of a U. S. Army uniform.

Keaton, who used the name Kenton in Columbus, is charged with wearing Uncle Sam's uniform although he has been discharged from the service. He was also said to have been using a soldier's free mailing privilege.

Keaton was found parading on Circleville streets with a sergeant's uniform. He was quoted as "wanting to give the girls a thrill."

DUCK HUNTERS' HEAVEN FOUND BY LOCAL MAN

Lieutenant Tom D. Kirwin of the Army air corps writes to his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kirwin, Watt street, that he is stationed in the center of the duck hunter's paradise at Stuttgart, Ark. Young Kirwin, who has made excellent strides in the air corps since his enlistment, is serving as post communications officer under Colonel Todd, his superior officer at Moody and Barksdale fields, two previous points of service.

The letter says that while Circleville's claim to fame has always been the Pumpkin Show, Stuttgart's claim is centered in its national duck calling contest. "I've seen and heard everything now," Tom writes to his brother, after witnessing this contest.

The Stuttgart field is a new one and will not be completed until January 15. Glider pilot training is scheduled there and many of the men already in the camp are from the Lockbourne air base. Kirwin writes, declaring that all highly praised the Lockbourne base.

JOE E. BROWN in "Shut My Big Mouth", a scene from which appears above, and Tim Holt in "Riding the Wind", are Circle theatre week end features.

A rabbit's foot may be of great significance to a rabbit but according to studio insiders, it means absolutely nothing to Bud Abbott and Lou Costello. Bud and Lou wear their hats on their beds as well as on their heads. They whistle entire operatic arias in their dressing rooms. They are devoid of all the conventional taboos of the superstition-ridden acting profession. Now rated the nation's No. 1 comedians, the lads are appearing currently in Universal's "Who Done It?" The novel comedy which opens Sunday for four days at the Grand theatre.

SIX local performers appear in America's (Mrs. Miniver). They are Edward Arnold, Fay Bainter, Richard Ney, Jean Rogers, Van Johnson and Spring Byington in M-G-M's drama of wartime Washington, "The Story of The War Against Mrs. Hadley", which opens Sunday at the Cliftona theatre.

Six Local Girls Aiding In Production of Arms

Six Pickaway county girls, several of them recent high school graduates, have started to play an important role in war production following graduation from National Youth administration training school in Columbus. All have accepted work in Columbus plants which are engaged in full war time production.

The list, announced Saturday by Miss Catherine Weis, NYA official, includes Miss Wanda Grabbill of near Circleville, who has completed eight weeks of training on a surface grinder in the machine shop and is now employed by the Timken Roller Bearing company. Columbus Bolt Works has hired the Misses Ruth Dowden, Mary Dowden, Ruth Davis and Betty Davis, all of Circleville, and Betty Jones of Ashville from the NYA machine shop as lathe operators. All the girls are engaged in precision work and tool making, replacing skilled men who have joined the armed forces.

of battle" and would not be permanent. If Secretary Stimson was afraid Willkie's statement would undermine efforts in North Africa, he must have had shivers over Roosevelt's statement. For the President went so far as to say that "no one in our Army has any authority to discuss the future government of France and the French Empire."

In view of this, Willkie's friends are completely mystified as to why Secretary Stimson called to suppress the Vichy portion of Willkie's speech. Whether Stimson was speaking for the President, remains their secret. But the incident has created the impression that despite talk of the "loyal opposition," the Administration much prefers criticism of itself by itself rather than criticism by outsiders.

NOTE: In view of the President's statement, Willkie has now authorized release of the suppressed portion of his speech.

GOVERNMENT COMPETES WITH GOVERNMENT

When the Maritime Commission cancelled Andrew Jackson Higgins' Liberty Ship-building plant at New Orleans, he had already built a large storage loft at a cost to the Government of $80,000.

After the contract cancellation, the Maritime Commission sold the loft to a private firm for $15,000 to be demolished.

Later Higgins was given a government contract to build 1,200 planes. Thus he will have to build a lot of new buildings, and needed the loft. He tried to get the private firm to quit tearing it down. Then he phoned frantically to the Maritime Commission. It replied that a contract had been given and the contract would have to stand.

Since the Government pays for all these things, this means a net loss to the Government of the difference between $80,000 and $15,000, or $65,000.

Also the Maritime Commission sold the piles driven into the mud on which the new shipyard was to stand, and a private firm began to pull them up. Again Higgins protested, said that these piles would be needed as foundation for the new airplane plant.

Maritime officials said the matter would have to wait three or four days for a meeting of the Commission.

These are some of the reasons why the war bill mounts higher.

PIPE-LINE DELAYS

The new oil pipe-line from Texas to southern Illinois will be finished about mid-September. Thanks to Secretary Ickes' oil men, the pipe-line has been built in record time.

But though it hasn't leaked out yet, the line, when finished, can't be used immediately. Reason: WPB wouldn't give priorities for pumps and valves. So another month will be required to get the pumps and start the pipe-line working.

From Illinois, oil will go by barge up the Ohio river, and this was calculated to ease the oil shortage in the East. However, oil requirements in North Africa will be so great that little can be spared for Eastern consumers.

MARINE SHOT BY COLUMBUS OFFICERS, DIES

Three times a deserter from the U. S. Marine Corps despite his youth, Herbert J. Cramer, 16, of Obetz Junction, died Friday in St. Francis hospital, Columbus, of a bullet wound through the head. The youth was shot before daylight Friday when he tried to drive a stolen car away from two Columbus policemen who had intercepted him following his flight from Circleville. Cramer, driving a stolen car which also carried two companions who were caught injured, was discovered in a Circleville alley at 3 p. m. Friday.

Circleville police chased Cramer to the vicinity of the Lockbourne air base where they lost him. His stolen car was seen an hour later in the Columbus east end and the fatal shooting took place. Cramer was struck by a bullet which entered his head behind his ear and left through his forehead.

His companions, Daniel Cramer, 14, a cousin, of Obetz Junction, and Leroy Smale, 16, of Columbus, were turned over to juvenile authorities, the latter to face stolen car charges.

The car they were driving is the property of Thomas Johnson, Columbus. It was stolen Thursday. Police got on the marine's trail after he obtained gasoline in Lancaster Thursday night, driving away without paying for it.

The younger Cramer and Smale told Columbus police they had pleaded with the slain youth to stop the car, but that he had ignored their appeals. The younger Cramer told police that the youth had told relatives he was on leave. The slain youth fled the Quantico base in September and was caught two days later. He fled again in a week, and then the third time just a week ago.

AUTOS COLLIDE

DUCK HUNTERS' HEAVEN FOUND BY LOCAL MAN

Lieutenant Tom D. Kirwin of the Army air corps writes to his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kirwin, Watt street, that he is stationed in the center of the duck hunter's paradise at Stuttgart, Ark. Young Kirwin, who has made excellent strides in the air corps since his enlistment, is serving as post communications officer under Colonel Todd, his superior officer at Moody and Barksdale fields, two previous points of service.

The letter says that while Circleville's claim to fame has always been the Pumpkin Show, Stuttgart's claim is centered in its national duck calling contest. "I've seen and heard everything now," Tom writes to his brother, after witnessing this contest.

The Stuttgart field is a new one and will not be completed until January 15. Glider pilot training is scheduled there and many of the men already in the camp are from the Lockbourne air base, Kirwin writes, declaring that all highly praised the Lockbourne base.

At Local Theatres

JOE E. Brown in "Shut My Big Mouth", a scene from which appears above, and Tim Holt in "Riding the Wind", are Circle theatre week end features.

A rabbit's foot may be of great significance to a rabbit but according to studio insiders, it means absolutely nothing to Bud Abbott and Lou Costello. Bud and Lou wear their hats on their beds as well as on their heads. They whistle entire operatic arias in their dressing rooms. They are devoid of all the conventional taboos of the superstition-ridden acting profession. Now rated the nation's No. 1 comedians, the lads are appearing currently in Universal's "Who Done It?" The novel comedy which opens Sunday for four days at the Grand theatre.

SIX new performers appear in America's (Mrs. Miniver). They are Edward Arnold, Fay Bainter, Richard Ney, Jean Rogers, Van Johnson and Spring Byington in M-G-M's drama of wartime Washington, "The Story of The War Against Mrs. Hadley", which opens Sunday at the Cliftona theatre.

Six Local Girls Aiding In Production of Arms

Six Pickaway county girls, several of them recent high school graduates, have started to play an important role in war production following graduation from National Youth administration training school in Columbus. All have accepted work in Columbus plants which are engaged in full war time production.

The list, announced Saturday by Miss Catherine Weis, NYA official, includes Miss Wanda Grabbil of near Circleville, who has completed eight weeks of training on a surface grinder in the machine shop and is now employed by the Timken Roller Bearing company.

Columbus Bolt Works has hired the Misses Ruth Dowden, Mary Dowden, Ruth Davis and Betty Davis, all of Circleville, and Betty Jones of Ashville from the NYA machine shop as lathe operators. All the girls are engaged in precision work and tool making, replacing skilled men who have joined the armed forces.

Previous to this time the Columbus Bolt Works has hired no girls under 21. The age limit in many Columbus plants has been reduced to 17 years for war production.

The NYA, cooperating with the National Employment Service, is guaranteeing war jobs for women between the ages of 17 and 25 after they complete training. Training is given in machine shop welding and sheet metal work, and free transportation is provided from Circleville and other Pickaway county centers to and from the Greenlawn avenue training center daily, Monday through Friday. Each is paid $25 a month when in training.

Any city or county girls interested in obtaining NYA training may contact Miss Weis at the engineer's office in the courthouse Monday between 10:30 a. m. and 12 o'clock noon.

of battle" and would not be permanent. If Secretary Stimson was afraid Willkie's statement would undermine efforts in North Africa, he must have had shivers over Roosevelt's statement. For the President went so far as to say that "no one in our Army has any authority to discuss the future government of France and the French Empire."

In view of this, Willkie's friends are completely mystified as to why Secretary Stimson called to suppress the Vichy portion of Willkie's speech. Whether Stimson was speaking for the President, remains their secret. But the incident has created the impression that despite talk of the "loyal opposition," the Administration much prefers criticism of itself by itself rather than criticism by outsiders.

NOTE: In view of the President's statement, Willkie has now authorized release of the suppressed portion of his speech.

GOVERNMENT COMPETES WITH GOVERNMENT

When the Maritime Commission cancelled Andrew Jackson Higgins' Liberty Ship-building plant at New Orleans, he had already built a large storage loft at a cost to the Government of $80,000.

After the contract cancellation, the Maritime Commission sold the loft to a private firm for $15,000 to be demolished.

Later Higgins was given a government contract to build 1,200 planes. Thus he will have to build a lot of new buildings, and needed the loft. He tried to get the private firm to quit tearing it down. Then he phoned frantically to the Maritime Commission. It replied that a contract had been given and the contract would have to stand.

Since the Government pays for all these things, this means a net loss to the Government of the difference between $80,000 and $15,000, or $65,000.

Also the Maritime Commission sold the piles driven into the mud on which the new shipyard was to stand, and a private firm began to pull them up. Again Higgins protested, said that these piles would be needed as foundation for the new airplane plant.

Maritime officials said the matter would have to wait three or four days for a meeting of the Commission.

These are some of the reasons why the war bill mounts higher.

PIPE-LINE DELAYS

The new oil pipe-line from Texas to southern Illinois will be finished about mid-September. Thanks to Secretary Ickes' oil men, the pipe-line has been built in record time.

But though it hasn't leaked out yet, the line, when finished, can't be used immediately. Reason: WPB wouldn't give priorities for pumps and valves. So another month will be required to get the pumps and start the pipe-line working.

From Illinois, oil will go by barge up the Ohio river, and this was calculated to ease the oil shortage in the East. However, oil requirements in North Africa will be so great that little can be spared for Eastern consumers.

MARINE SHOT BY COLUMBUS OFFICERS, DIES

Three times a deserter from the U. S. Marine Corps despite his youth, Herbert J. Cramer, 16, of Obetz Junction, died Friday in St. Francis hospital, Columbus, of a bullet wound through the head. The youth was shot before daylight Friday when he tried to drive a stolen car away from two Columbus policemen who had intercepted him following his flight from Circleville. Cramer, driving a stolen car which also carried two companions who were caught injured, was discovered in a Circleville alley at 3 p. m. Friday.

Circleville police chased Cramer to the vicinity of the Lockbourne air base where they lost him. His stolen car was seen an hour later in the Columbus east end and the fatal shooting took place. Cramer was struck by a bullet which entered his head behind his ear and left through his forehead.

His companions, Daniel Cramer, 14, a cousin, of Obetz Junction, and Leroy Smale, 16, of Columbus, were turned over to juvenile authorities, the latter to face stolen car charges.

The car they were driving is the property of Thomas Johnson, Columbus. It was stolen Thursday. Police got on the marine's trail after he obtained gasoline in Lancaster Thursday night, driving away without paying for it.

The younger Cramer and Smale told Columbus police they had pleaded with the slain youth to stop the car, but that he had ignored their appeals. The younger Cramer told police that the youth had told relatives he was on leave. The slain youth fled the Quantic base in September and was caught two days later. He fled again in a week, and then the third time just a week ago.
